JAP FLEET IN FLIGHT AFTER ALLIED VICTORY IN BATTLE OF CORAL SEA

VICTORY EASES INVASION FEAR IN AUSTRALIA

U. S. Japs Still Retain Strong Naval Forces, Military Authorities Warn.

By The Associated Press

ADVANCE ALLIED BASE ... Australia, May 9 — United States ... victory in the great sea battle off ... Australia ended temporarily at least the Japanese invasion threat to the island continent, Allied air-garrisoned New Caledonia and Port Moresby, military authorities said today.

... authorities warned against too great optimism, however, and emphasized that the situation "still is serious."

The Japanese fleet, intent either upon severing Australia's lifeline from the United States or an actual invasion of the populous east coast of the continent, wheeled in desperation behind the pacific hammering of Allied planes and surface craft.

In their desperation to escape the savage attacks which put 11 of their ships at the bottom of the Coral sea, and left six badly crippled, the remnants of the enemy fleet left long curly wakes that resembled the thrashing of a wounded snake.

Japs Still Strong

The Japanese still have powerful naval and air forces in the vast area of the Solomon Islands, New Britain, New Guinea, the Bismarck archipelago and the mandated islands and it was this knowledge that prompted the military authorities to caution against bland optimism for the future.

Military experts recalled that the Japanese kept moving against the Treasure island of Java through Macassar strait despite losses comparable to those suffered since Monday.

This time, however, the Japanese were forced to retire while in the case of Macassar the crippled and wounded invasion force pressed forward.

U. S. Bombers Busy

In correlary to the main battle, nine United States bombers sank a Japanese convoy off New Britain Friday.

BOND PLEDGE REPORTS GOOD

Marion Residents Give Workers Warm Welcome; Drive To End Sunday.

First reports of the war bond and stamp pledge campaign show enthusiasm on the part of both workers and the citizens of Marion, the Kiwanis club said this morning.

By Sunday evening it is expected that virtually complete reports will have been filed with precinct chairmen by the hundreds of workers now canvassing every residential area in the city in an effort to learn how much money men, women and children expect to invest with their government for prosecution of the war effort.

BUY UNITED STATES WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

Precinct chairmen will report to their ward chairmen, who will make final reports to the county war bond and stamp committee of which E. J. Schoenlaub is chairman.

Both Harold J. Grigsby, president of the Kiwanis club and Dr. Harry L. Bell of Central Christian church, chairman of the club's citizenship committee, praised the workers and the people they are canvassing.

"The women are doing a magnificent job; they're right out at their work in their precincts and deserve a lot of credit," Mr. Grigsby said this morning. "And enthusiasm seems to be as high among the citizens. People seem to be waiting for them to come. On some streets families in every house have signed pledges. Some pledges are very substantial, although these pledges are strictly confidential and no amounts can be given."

Dr. Bell said the big thing over the week-end will be to get the canvass completed by Sunday evening.

New Regulations On Deferments Announced

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, May 9—New regulations eliminating draft deferments for married selective service registrants whose wives became pregnant after Dec. 7 were announced today by George L. Baker, county draft inspector.

Baker returned today from a meeting of the Ohio selective service board in Columbus. He asserted registrants in this category who already have been deferred will be reclassified at the expiration of their six-months classification periods. In addition, deferment no longer will be granted married men whose working wives quit their jobs after the Pearl Harbor attack.

Navy Issues List of Wounded Seamen

Thomas Hart Taylor, ensign, of Lima, Charles Clark Peeman, seaman, of Mansfield and Frederick Harris Marin, seaman, of Newark, were included in a casualty list of war wounded issued today by the navy department. The Associated Press reported. Thirty-seven Ohioans, five officers and 32 enlisted men, were listed in the report.

Ordnance Plant Area Closed To Visitors, Beginning Tonight

Official Business Required for Admittance; Project Weekly Payroll Now Past $80,000.

Figures on the Scioto Ordnance Plant payroll and its effect on business in Marion and vicinity were among today's news developments concerning the plant.

Another development was clarification of the road closing order which becomes effective tonight to keep sightseers out of the war plant area.

Also reported are results of a survey of wells in the plant area.

Road Closing Order Effective Tonight

Roads in the Scioto Ordnance Plant area will be closed to visitors, beginning tonight, unless they can show they have some matter of business to attend to within the site area.

Meanwhile, steps are being taken through the county prosecutor's office and the office of the county commissioners to close the roads so far as the county is concerned. This procedure is expected to take two or three weeks and after it has been completed, it is expected passes will be required to get into the plant grounds.

These announcements came this morning from William Piers, project manager of the army engineers' land acquisition office and from Prosecuting Attorney James E. Reed to clarify an earlier announcement about the closing of roads.

Actually, roads have been closed for more than two weeks in some areas where construction is going on, and the policy effective tonight is merely an expansion of the policy of keeping visitors out of construction areas. Beginning tonight, which was set a month ago as the deadline for farmers to move from the area, guards will be posted at all roads leading into the site.

If anyone can show he has official business on the grounds, the guards will let him pass, Mr. Piers said. Sightseers will be turned away.

Wells on Ordnance Plant Site Checked

A survey of the wells on the Scioto Ordnance Plant reservation, conducted recently at the request of the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., revealed that there are only 30 out of a total of 193 which are satisfactory for providing drinking water for plant workers.

The survey was conducted over a period of about two weeks by Eugene B. Willey, county sanitarian working out of the county health office and Frank Conroy, sanitation engineer for Hunkin-Conkey.

Mr. Willey said the survey was made throughout the entire government site, which includes 128 tracts, large and small. Of the total of 193, Mr. Willey said there were only 36 which were checked. Thirty were found to be satisfactory and six were polluted, he said.

He reported 157 wells were not checked for purity because they were either improperly developed or were "dug" wells instead of drilled. He said 98 were "dug" and 59 improperly developed.

Most of the wells have now been posted according to their classification, Mr. Willey said. If more wells are found to be satisfactory, they will be so marked, he said.

Plant Payroll Now $84,000 a Week

The Scioto Ordnance Plant construction project now has a weekly payroll of around $84,000.

When the peak of employment is reached that figure is expected to be increased to around half a million dollars a week.

These figures furnish some idea of the impact the project is expected to have on business in Marion and nearby communities.

Merchants in widely varied lines of business report their volume of sales already has been substantially increased by purchases of ordnance plant construction workers. Almost without exception, the merchants are studying means of expanding their staffs and making other provision to give the city's new residents prompt service.

One of the first lines of business to feel the effect of the newcomers' arrival was restaurants. Most of them now do a capacity business nearly every noon and evening, many times with customers standing by, waiting for seats.

Another specific line of business which has reported heavily increased sales in recent weeks is that of work clothing.

The list of business affected is almost endless. Barbers report an increase, workers' wives have stepped up the business of beauty parlors. Food stores notice scores of new customers, and theater crowds are growing.

Pleased with Marion

Marion residents generally have been unusually kind and helpful, a high official of one of the converns engaged in the plant construction program said today. He said business places and banks have been accommodating and alert to the needs of the newcomers and have volunteered help in solving some of their problems such as finding homes and establishing business and social contacts.

He said his organization has been pleased by the city's attitude of helpfulness and the treatment received from businessmen generally, including hotels and restaurants.

WOOSTER MAN BEATS MOTHER TO DEATH

Calls Physician 24 Hours After Thursday Slaying.

By The Associated Press

WOOSTER O., May 9 — Sheriff E. E. Mills said today an Orrville railroad worker had confessed he beat his mother to death, then went to work and returned to their home before calling a physician 24 hours after the slaying.

The oral confession came from Arch Rhodes Matteson, 23, who gave no reason for the motive except that he had a "supreme command," Sheriff Mills said. Mrs. Ina F. Matteson, 62, was found in a blood-spattered room—dead of a fractured skull, the coroner reported.

Sheriff Mills said a tray holding wine decanters evidently had been used to beat the mother on the head. He gave this account:

Matteson, track supervisor for a branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, yesterday told Dr. Robbert Hecker that someone had killed his mother.

Dr. Hecker and Matteson went to the Matteson home, where the woman's body was found on the floor, covered by a blanket. Her hands, face and head were cut and bruised. She had died about noon Thursday.

The sheriff also said that Matteson had reported for work Thursday afternoon and yesterday.

Coroner L. A. Adair said death apparently was caused by a blow which fractured Mrs. Matteson's skull.

Matteson, classified 1-A in the selective service, underwent a preliminary physical examination Wednesday.

32,654 Is Total As Registration For Sugar Ends

A total of 32,654 Marion city residents made application for sugar rationing books this week, 1,837 over the official 1940 census figure for the city, and in the county the registrations ran considerably over the anticipated figures, in some cases as high as eight and ten per cent, school officials announced today.

Final figure on the city registration was reported this morning by Supt. E. E. Holt.

Above Expectation

County Supt. D. T. Mills said it would be Monday before he could give any figures on the registration in the county. However, he said, the number of applications was far beyond expectations. He said he would work over Sunday, reassigning county residents to their rationing areas and preparing a report of the total registration. The reassigning will be necessary, he said, because the rationing was done by townships rather than by school districts, which determine the seven county rationing board areas.

Asked whether he felt that the registration in Marion covered most of the population, Supt. Holt said, "I should think it certainly was rather complete." He added that there would be no way of definitely determining the population increase in the last several months in connection with the Scioto Ordnance Plant.

Some Already Supplied

Of the 32,654 persons who registered, 20,572 received rationing books, due to the fact that 3,084 persons declared quantities of sugar on hand in excess of six pounds of sugar per person in their families.

Two hundred and thirty-seven persons registered yesterday in a special two-hour period set for those who were unable to make application on the first four days of the week. Of this number 210 received books.

Following are yesterday's registration figures by schools, the first figure the number of applications, the second the number of books issued:

Forest Lawn, 15-9; George Washington, 14-11; Glenwood, 21-16; Greenwood, 29-26; Mark, 22-28; North Main, 17-16; Oak, 11-11; Oakland, 20-20; Olney, 11-11; Pearl, 67-52; Silver, 10-10.

Persons who have not registered may make application to their local rationing boards, beginning May 21.

Both city and county school heads emphasized that no more registrations will be taken at the schools. The schools have completed the task assigned them by the government and the rationing program from now on will be carried through by the local boards.

LOSS SERIOUS TO JAP NAVY

Eventual Naval Exhaustion for Tokyo Seen; Summary of Losses Listed.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 9—Japan was regarded in Washington today as headed toward eventual naval exhaustion through such wearing losses as those in the Coral sea.

But observers cautioned that the tide of ocean battle was still unturned and looked for sudden new Japanese blows—possibly a continuance of the southward thrust toward Australia.

In the absence of an official final summary of the fight there was a tendency to believe that the Japanese had suffered far heavier losses than the American units.

Many saw an indication of this in the navy's statement last night that "details of losses and damage to our forces are not fully known at present, but no credence should be given to claims that have been or may be put out by Tokyo."

If the Japanese have sunk even ship for ship, observers said, the engagement would still be an allied victory from the long term view.

Summary of Fighting

The navy department's latest official summary on the Coral sea fighting was issued last night, before a temporary end of the battle had been announced in Australia, and gave this accounting of Japanese losses since the action started Monday:

ATTACK TO CONTINUE, MAC ARTHUR STATES IN OFFICIAL REPORT

By ROGER D. GREEN
Associated Press War Editor

In nine dynamic words, "The enemy has been repulsed ... our attacks will continue," Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported at least preliminary victory for the Allies in the great six-day-old battle of the Coral Sea today and indicated that the proud Japanese naval squadrons were in flight.

Military authorities at "an advanced Allied base" in Australia said United States victory in the historic sea fight had at least temporarily ended the Japanese invasion threat to Australia.

These authorities warned against too great optimism, however, emphasizing that the situation was "still serious."

Remnants of the Japanese armada, seeking desperately to escape the terrific hammering of Allied planes and naval guns, were described as zig-zagging frantically in flight.

The score:

Allies claim — 11 Japanese ships sunk, six badly damaged, thousands of men lost.

Tokyo claims — Four Allied ships sunk, three damaged.

Imperial Japanese quarters said an Allied destroyer had been sunk and a cruiser heavily damaged, in addition to successes previously reported.

Even amid this lopsided tally, giving the Allies nearly a 3-to-1 edge, the U. S. navy warned that "no credence should be given to claims that have been or may be put out by Tokyo."

The only announced American losses have been three planes.

While Gen. MacArthur reported that the Japanese fleet had broken off the engagement, with U. S. warships and planes apparently in hot pursuit, Japanese headquarters declared:

"Imperial naval units, continuing to attack in the Coral Sea area, have further caused damage to a heavy cruiser by a head-on crash by a torpedo plane. They also sank a destroyer."

The cruiser episode presumably described another Japanese "suicide dive," in which enemy pilots, wounded or out of control, attempt to crash into the nearest Allied objective.

Tokyo Claims "Fantastic"

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters branded the Japanese claims as "fantastic," declaring:

"The enemy version of the battling off the northeast coast of Australia is entirely fictional and has no semblance of a true communique of fact. It must be regarded in the light of propaganda rather than as a military report.

"His claims of damage inflicted on our naval forces are fantastic.

"Our losses compared with his are relatively light. The only reason they have not been published at this time is because it would reveal to him information of value."

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters left no doubt on these points:

1. That the Allies had won at least the first round of the flaming sea battle.

2. That Japan may have suffered a naval disaster of the first magnitude.

3. That the mighty Japanese in-

MacArthur Says Allied Loss Light Compared with Japan's

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, May 9 — General MacArthur's communique declared today that Allied losses were "relatively light" compared with Japan's in the great battle of the Coral Sea from which the enemy apparently was withdrawing with Allied ships and planes in hot pursuit.

The communique indicated that Japan may have suffered a naval disaster of the first magnitude, following the earlier announcement that her mighty invasion armada had failed to smash Australia's defenses and that its remnants had broken off the crucial six-day battle.

It called Japanese claims—(chiefly to have sunk a United States battleship and two aircraft carriers)—"entirely fictional."

"It must be regarded in the light of propaganda rather than military report," the war bulletin said. "His claims of damage inflicted on our naval forces is fantastic.

"Our losses compared with his own are relatively light.

"The only reason they are not published at the present time is because they would reveal to him information of value."

No Victory Claimed

Still, however, General MacArthur's headquarters reserved, for the present at least, any flat claim of victory.

But it told the people of Australia and their Allies that "the enemy has been repulsed," indicating that the continent's sea ... on which its fate had hung for six days of surprise during the greatest shiftdown battle of this war, had held secure and impenetrable.

First jubilant inclinations in Australia were to hail the announcement as word of a thorough victory, but the communique was phrased cautiously and the attitude at General MacArthur's headquarters was that it still was too soon to know whether a decisive blow had been struck.

Japan apparently suffered a grievous naval setback. Eleven of her ships are at the bottom of the sea and six more have been heavily damaged. Allied communiques say. Thousands of her fighting men are believed lost, including trained fliers and seamen and probably valuable first-line troops aboard sunken or damaged transports.

Final Test to Come

The test of how heavily the Japanese have been hit, however, it was pointed out, depends on whether they can reorganize and reinforce their armada and try again.

This was not yet clear. It was not disclosed what original strength the Japanese sent into the fateful struggle in the sea northeast of Australia or what blows they had dealt the Allies.

(There was similar reserve in Washington, where the navy also avoided claiming victory. But it was lightened by indications that American losses may prove slight in comparison with those of Japan. So far, the United States has announced only the loss of three planes.)

General MacArthur's communique, praise of the skill and courage of the Allied forces, nevertheless left no doubt that at least they had won the first round, announcing that the great battle "has temporarily ceased . . . the enemy has been repulsed."

The added announcement that "our attacks will continue" in-

8-Room Parsonage Built Entirely By Donated Labor To Be Dedicated Sunday

Members of First Pilgrim Holiness Church Finish Year-Long Job.

Built entirely by men and women of the congregation and community, the parsonage, the home of a minister, the new parsonage of First Pilgrim Holiness church will be dedicated in services Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the church.

After the services at 4 p. m. the parsonage, located at 102 Waterloo street, will be open to everyone in Marion interested in seeing the home of Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Chatfield.

Rev. W. L. Sutbrook of Detroit, general superintendent of the denomination, will be in charge of the dedication services. The Marion County Holiness association, of which the church is a member, has made a special effort to attend the services and the open house.

Valued at $7,279.

That the parsonage, an eight-room modern home, is a worthy community project is evidenced by the value of an estimated $7,279 placed on labor and materials. Cost of the building is $2,000, a large part of which was given by the congregation and friends as a testimony of appreciation of the pastor's work.

Approximately 74 men, women and young people, including the pastor and his family, gave a total of 5,092 hours to building the parsonage. The basement was dug last December 29 and last Dec. 23 the home was far enough along that the Chatfield family moved in. This week, the finishing touches were given the home, except for the landscaping.

Figuring the skilled and the unskilled labor at a flat 50 cents an hour, the labor cost saved by the volunteers amounted to $2,546.

Hauling of stone and the donating of other materials is valued at $139.59, special offerings and personal gifts brought in $693.49, bringing the total estimated cost of the building to $3,379.

In addition the church paid $1,000 for the two lots at the corner of Waterloo and York streets, site of the parsonage, and realized a savings of $900 in salvaged lumber bringing the total estimated value of the property to $7,279.08.

Neighborhood Project.

The neighborhood teems with skilled carpenters, plasterers, electricians and painters and there are few people in the community who do not know the friendly pastor and his family.

The idea of a congregation building its own parsonage caught the interest of many persons outside the church and there was never a time while it was under construction that there wasn't plenty of volunteer help available for any job that had to be done.

Building of the parsonage became a community project. Recently Rev. Chatfield compiled a list of the workers and the number of hours contributed. The volunteered hours range from one hour to 1416 hours—the latter the contribution of the pastor. C. M. Brown gave 1,130 hours, Scott Wilson gave 672, Charles Gray gave 267, Mrs. Chatfield worked 168 hours, Mrs. Alva Redmon gave 115 hours, Fred Osborne, 114, and B. G. Wilkerson, 106.

"No matter whether they gave one hour or a hundred, every man, woman and child on my list deserves the warmest of thanks and the deepest gratitude," Rev. Chatfield said yesterday.

The congregation feels the same way about the pastor.

Before going into the ministry 20 years ago Rev. Chatfield and two of his brothers were a contracting firm building houses in Kentucky and southern Ohio. He knows how to build and he put this knowledge into the parsonage.

Details of House

The 48-foot front of the home includes a two-car garage with windows curtained to match the rest of the first floor windows. Entrance to the garage is at the rear, by way of a curving gravel drive off York street.

A singular feature of the interior is that at the landing of the stairs leading to the second floor is a door leading into a combination bedroom over the garage.

"We didn't design a house with a front porch, because as I said to Mr. Chatfield, we never have time to sit on a porch, so we'd build a large porch to gather dirt," Rev. Chatfield said. There is a large rear porch.

The front entrance way leads into a vestibule. An archway leads into a 19 by 16 living room at the left, and to the right off the living room is Rev. Chatfield's 9 by 8 foot study. At the rear of the first floor are the 11 by 14 foot dining room, opening into the living room by an archway, a pantry, breakfast nook and a 17 by 14 kitchen. The kitchen has a long work table, spaces built especially for the electric range and refrigerator, and a broom closet. Off the hall leading from the kitchen to the stairs there is a lavatory. There are three large bedrooms on the second floor, in addition to the room over the garage, a 6 foot bathroom with shower and two large linen closets in each bedroom.

In the large basement, 6 foot, three-inches high, there is a separate furnace room, cool fruit cellar, and a toilet. The furnace, a forced air heater which burns coal, has an oscillation system.

Old Church Site

The parsonage is built on the site of one of the denomination's first churches in the Bucyrus services had been held in the old frame church the last 10 years. When it razed the value of the lumber was estimated at $8.

Until the pastor and his family moved into the parsonage, congregation was paying a month rent. Now the $20 applied to the debt, some is projected, some to the interest.

"In 10 years the parsonage the congregation's and we will be hurt financially," Chatfield said.

Rev. and Mrs. Chatfield and their family came to Marion years ago. April 21, 1940. Odessa, Mich. They have children, Mrs. I. M. Farnsworth of a Pilgrim Holiness pastor at Muskegon, Mich., Chatfield of Bennett street, Miss Dorothy Chatfield, at home, Miss Chatfield is song leader the junior department of the day school and her brother church chorister. Mrs. Chatfield in charge of the junior department of the Sunday school. Miss Chatfield and her brother and sister-in-law are the Chatfield trio, a musical group which appeared on many broadcasts.

REV. R. W. CHATFIELD

God's Knowledge

A SERMONETTE

By REV. R. W. CHATFIELD
Pastor, First Pilgrim Holiness Church

Scripture Lesson Psalms 139.

THIS Psalm has always been the subject of praise. Lord Brougham spoke of it as "That singularly beautiful poem." Herder said that language utterly failed him in its exposition.

Notice First Divine Omniscience.

We find in reading this Psalm that God has an exhaustive knowledge of man. It is like the result of a searching inquisition which left nothing unexplained. Whether he be at rest or in motion, in every pasture and state, God knows him. Not only his outward acts, but the thoughts from which they spring are at once discerned. A living process precludes all possibility of error. And so in regard to words, the instant a concept appears and before the tongue is trained to utter it, it is wholly known to the All Seeing One. Its origin, its tendency, its moral quality. Nothing can escape God's eye, for He is behind and before and has on all sides of man and His hand is upon him to restrain and control. The Psalmist says that he cannot comprehend this, which is not strange for us the finite to comprehend the Infinite but he knows it and bows in reverence before the sublime truth. A fine parallel to this utterance is found in the words of the Great Apostle Paul. CONCLUDING his arguments, considering the system of Grace, Romans 11-33, "Oh the depths of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God how unsearchable are his judgments and his ways past finding out."

The Divine Omnipresence verse 7-12 "Whither shall I go from thy spirit or whither shall I flee from thy presence. If I ascend up into heaven, behold thou are there. If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea. Even there shall thy hand lead me and thy right hand shall hold me. If I say surely darkness shall cover me, even night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day the darkness and the light are both alike to thee." God is everywhere, He is not only present with all as transcendent, but He is also immanent in all as immanent in nature. This truth is expanded and enforced by its application to all measure of space.

FIRST in the region above the man to scale the azure dome overhead it would only confront him with the divine presence, but even were he to sound the unfathomable depths in the other direction the results would be the same. The dark gloomy recesses of hell, the underworld hides nothing from the ever present God. If in the region above and the region below it must alike be said that He is there. It is for divine purposes and with different results, still He is there. No man mounted on wings like the dawn and pursued the path of the first flight westward, or with the same swiftness as the rays of the morning shoot from one end of the heavens to the other, still he would not escape beyond God's presence. Beyond the sea and far out of the reach of man, God's hand would lead him and his right hand grasp him.

Darkness will not hide him though it be as was the darkness that settle down upon Egypt, darkness that might be felt. It makes nothing dark to God, no veiling nor concealment is possible before Him.

Knowing that thou, God, knowest me, what manner of person ought we to be in all holiness of conversation and Godliness.

America's Sweetheart

MOTHER

● Countless words of praise have been written about Mother through the years. Once in his career every poet eulogizes her. Biographers tell of mother's influence on famous sons and daughters. Greeting card people keep busy writing all manner of messages to mother. Yet isn't it strange how, when each one of us comes to trying to express what he feels in his heart for his own mother—words seem inadequate? This year that's truer than ever: because this is the kind of year that reemphasizes how much a mother means—how far reaching her devotion is—how she can give courage to go on to even strong men who grow weak. Mother sustains us; keeps back the tears when they would make our own tears flow; "makes ends meet" so that we can have, though she can have not.

● In the home as counsellor to the family, she's always shown her readiness too, and capacity for facing emergencies. Now she shoulders added responsibilities in the national emergency. She's pitching right in—doing air raid duty, and roof spotting. She's walking to and from the store, helping save oil and rubber for our fighting machines. She's carrying lots more packages than she used to, for the same reason—and she's working miracles, running the house, planning menus, clothing the family better for less, and finding new ways to make things last longer. Pretty as a picture—a gracious hostess when dad or children tote home unexpected guests. She loves to laugh—to see her family about her. In every way she's America's sweetheart.

A NUPTIAL mass was read at 9:30 o'clock this morning in St. Mary Catholic church, solemnizing the marriage of Miss Mary Jane Ray, daughter of Mrs. Clara E. Ray of 419 South Main street and Thomas E. Gray, son of Mrs. Mary Gray of 210 South Vine street. Rev. Father William J. Sherman, pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony and was the celebrant of the mass.

The gold vases on the altar and the snapdragon and candytuft, and at either side of the entrance to the sanctuary was a tall white basket filled with white lilacs.

St. Mary's choir, choir, with Miss Rosalie Manzo at the organ, sang the Mass in Honor of the Holy Rosary. During the offertory the choir sang "Ave Maria" by Pitoni, and for the wedding march Miss Manzo played the Wagner march and a composition by Reed.

Miss Ray's bride, gown of ivory crepe satin was worn by her sister, Elizabeth, when she became Mrs. Bernard Maloney several years ago. The softly shirred bodice was topped with a lace yoke and the lace was repeated in the ivory of the long sleeves which ended in points at the hands. The skirt extended into a long, scalloped train. Her veil of ivory bridal illusion of three-quarter length and held with a halo of orange blossoms, was completed her costume. She carried the gift of the bridegroom, Gardenias and stephanotis formed the bridal bouquet on which was tied with white ribbons and she wore a bracelet of diamonds, gift from her mother, a wedding gift.

MRS. THOMAS E. GRAY

The bride was given to the altar by her brother-in-law, Mr. Maloney. Preceding her down the aisle was her sister, Mrs. Robert Bintz of Zanesville, who was her matron of honor, and Mrs. Elizabeth Gray, sister of the bridegroom, bridesmaid. Both wore gowns of pale pink. The lace gowns were fashioned with peplums and short, puffed sleeves and the only trim was two groups of grain ribbon bows in the front and back. The full skirts were of tulle. Flower, arranged in halos, held their short veils which matched their dresses and they carried tight, round bouquets of shell pink carnations, purple sweet peas and statice.

John Gray served as best man for his brother, and the guests were seated by Robert Bintz of Zanesville and John Curnick of Evansville, Ind.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Ray chose a pink lace dress with hat and accessories in pink and fuchsia. The bridegroom's mother wore a print jacket ensemble in green with white accessories. Both wore gardenia corsages.

The reception and wedding breakfast for more than 50 guests was at Hotel Harding. The table centerpiece was all white and was fashioned of stocks, candytuft and feverfew.

Later when Mr. and Mrs. Gray left on a short wedding trip in the east the bride was wearing a navy blue suit of crepe and grosgrain. Gold buttons trimmed the front of the short jacket, which had bracelet length sleeves banded with deep cuffs, and her three-quarter length gloves, hat and accessories were in harmonizing shades. Pinned to her jacket was a gardenia.

Upon their return they will live at Aurora, O.

The bride was graduated from St. Mary Parochial High school and has been employed in the office of the Osgood company. Mr. Gray, also a graduate of St. Mary school, attended Ohio State university, where he affiliated with Phi Delta Theta fraternity, and is an alumnus of Southern California university. Mother's Day

YOU, M[illegible] America[illegible] pet[illegible], your goal, oh, [illegible] to make [illegible] short, you'll be in the [illegible] tomorrow. Treat [illegible] gifts, greeting card [illegible] scores of other reminders that this is your day—Mother's Day. In ancient times, as records prove, claim, temples were built to "Mother - Goddess," offerings brought to her altar and [illegible] shown with music and [illegible]. The Romans celebrated the festival of Hilaria and set aside the fifteenth of March as the day for observance. With the early Christian men thought no longer of "Mother-Goddess" but of "Mother Church" and the Madonna. In Her they idealized all women, all that was beautiful in motherhood, in woman's eternal patience and suffering. They offered her their prayers, and if they had the genius for it perpetuated their devotion in sculpture and painting. The date of Mother's Day is set each year by Presidential proclamation and President Roosevelt this year, naming May 10th for the celebration, calls upon us "to express the love and reverence which we feel for the mothers of our country by the customary display of the flag at our homes and other suitable places and by tokens and messages of affection."

First Plea

THE [illegible] known public plea for the actual [illegible] of a nation-wide Mother's Day was made Feb. 7, 1961, when Frank L. Boyden walked out on the stage of English' Opera house in Indianapolis, Ind., to deliver a memorial address before the Indianapolis lodge of Eagles. Herring, a young professor at the University of Notre Dame and a gifted speaker, urged his listeners to set aside a day of tribute to mothers and motherhood. Inside the doors of the opera house is a memorial tablet upon which is inscribed the words, "On this site, Sunday, Feb. 7, 1904, the first known public plea for a nation's observance of Mother's Day was made." The unveiling ceremony was attended by representatives of the American War Mothers, one of only five women's organizations chartered by Congress. Through Mr. Herring's talks over a period of eight years, many states recognized the day officially. In Texas, it was known as "Eagles Mothers' Day," and the governor made that day the occasion for issuing pardons to many unfortunate [illegible] of sorrowing mothers. In 1913 Nebraska made it a [illegible] Mother's Day also state [illegible].

Date Set

ANOTHER American who worked for the establishment of Mother's Day was Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia. Commemorating the death of her own mother on the second Sunday in May it occurred to her that the day, falling as it does in the season of blue skies and blossoms, might well be set aside as a day upon which due tribute of affection and remembrance should be rendered to all mothers. Through Miss Jarvis and her supporters Congress decreed the second Sunday in May as the official day and the declaration was made by President Wilson. On this day you will wear a white flower if you have lost that unselfish friend, or a red one in joy at possessing her.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Collins of 510 North State street announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Lois E. Coder, to Edgar Wyatt of Waldo yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the home of Rev. W. K. Riggs of North Grand avenue, Baptist minister. Upon their return from a trip to Kentucky, Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt will be at home on a farm two miles south of Waldo.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, May 10

Sunday's horoscope is a very intriguing one, despite many irregularities and conflicts. There is need of caution in dealings with professional people and with large corporations, where there is danger of peculiar, confusing and subtle involvements of a sinister nature. A strong tendency to impetuous, easy and excessive outlay of funds, in gambling or long chances, or in personal indulgence would be regrettable.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of much intrigue, treachery, subtle, peculiar and sinister relations, probably owing to an easy tendency to gamble, spend or be victimized, by professional persons or those in power. Also the proclivity to excess, self-indulgence and general prodigality and over-lavishness may produce regrettable entanglements. With precaution and good sense there might be enduring benefits.

A child born on this day may have many conflicting traits of character, with lavish, prodigal and indulgent habits. Yet it has sound talents and originality.

For Monday, May 11

Monday's astrological forecast is for a lively and progressive day, with much moving to major operations under high pressure. However, this tempo may prove menacing, since there may be danger of agitation, strife, and rash and impulsive action with rancor and ill feeling. Secret enmity and deceit also pervade the domestic, affectional or social relations, although public or community interests push on to gratifying culminations. It is wise to deal with groups and agencies rather than hazardous personal contact. Safeguard love affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively year, with much success and satisfaction if turbulent, violent and impetuous conduct be avoided by dealing through public channels or agencies where there might be strife or contention in private contacts. Intimate affiliations are under baneful vibrations.

A child born this day should be clever and versatile but its nature may be impetuous, turbulent and difficult especially in its private relations.

Here Are Suggestions for War-Time Care of Your Plumbing Equipment

Proper Attention Assures Long Life of Both Plumbing and Heating Systems.

Sinks — Don't use uncovered ...boards as cutting ...chop ice on sink. Don't scrape pots ...basin or drain... ...the use of strong ...ers on the surface ...cast iron plumbing

Tubs—Cover tub with heavy ...cloth when painting or decorating bathroom. Don't stand in tub with shoes on to change window screens or adjust curtains.

Faucets—Have all leaks stopped promptly in order to prevent waste of water, damage to faucet seat, and discoloration of fixtures by dripping water. Use only high grade faucet washers. Always close faucets with gentle and firm motion, never with an abrupt twist which may damage seat of faucet.

Chromium plating—If exposed to salt, salt air or calcium chloride, chromium plated surfaces should be washed frequently with soap and water. After drying a protective coating of furniture wax should be applied. Under normal conditions, an occasional washing with soap and water and drying with soft cloth will be sufficient attention.

Drains—Don't pour hot grease or water that is especially greasy down the waste. It congeals and clogs the lines. Sink drain pipes can be kept clean for long periods if scalding water is poured down them once a day.

Water closets—Keep flushing mechanism in tanks in good working order. Replace worn float valves and old or deformed tank balls. Check flush rim openings for stoppage due to hard water. Keep bowls in sanitary condition by frequent use of cleaner. Use caution in selection of brushes for cleaning bowls. Avoid brushes which might mar the finish of the bowl.

Closing seats—Use soap and water to clean sheet-covered seats and wax or oil to clean painted wooden seats. Polish hinges with metal polish.

Closet seats—Hot water is more corrosive than cold water. Have a master plumber advise you on safe maximum water temperature and have the heater adjusted to this temperature.

Hot water boiler—Have soot and fly ash cleaned from exterior flues. Have interior water passageways cleaned with boiler liquids, if required. Have entire hot water heating plant checked this spring by an experienced heating and piping contractor.

Oil burner—Keep motors and fans cleaned. Lubricate frequently. Clean burner nozzles and ignition. Have heating and piping contractor or oil burner service man check controls and air volume.

Stoker—Keep motor clean and lubricate frequently. Use care in selection of fuel. Maintain proper firebed depth to protect iron.

Air valves—Have air vales on steam heating system checked by heating and piping contractor to be sure they are venting properly. Have defective valves replaced by new multi-venting valves which maintain perfect balance of heat distribution.

Indirect water heating coils and expansion tank. Flush sediment from coils at frequent intervals. Have air expelled from expansion tank.

Good workmanship is safer, more economical in the long run. Have all plumbing and heating work done by experts.

Attic Can Provide Living Quarters

There's hidden treasure in many attics these days. It's in the form of potential living space, for which there is a crying demand in every center of defense production. All that is necessary to make it profitable is to convert it into rooms.

If properly done, finishing the attic will reduce fuel bills as well as create a new source of revenue.

Many home owners, to whom the added revenue is a secondary consideration, are opening their homes to defense workers and production executives as a patriotic contribution to the nation's war effort.

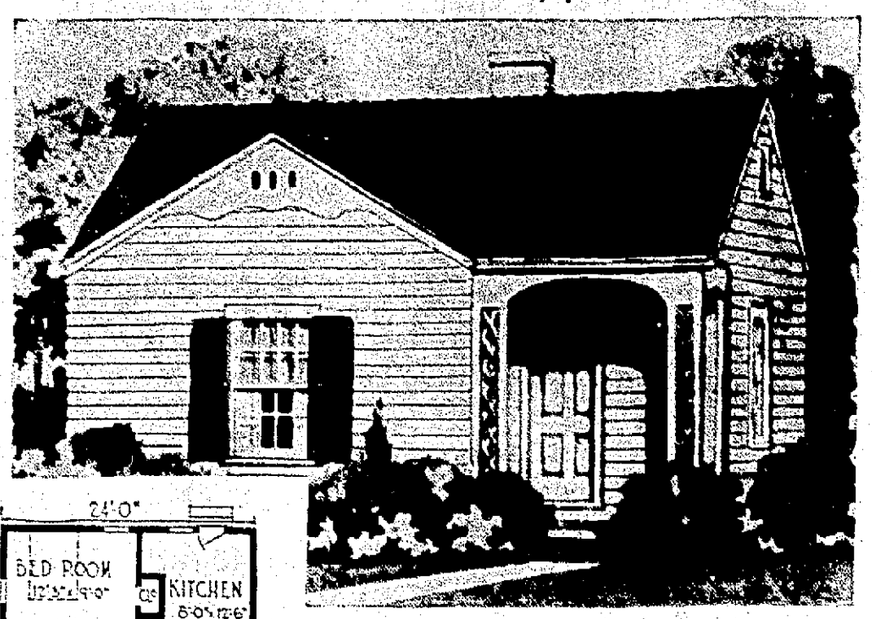
Take Good Care Of That Paint Brush

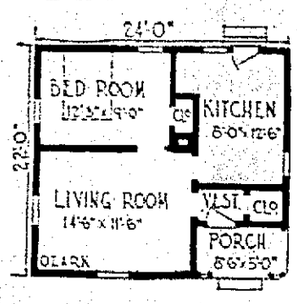
By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND—American hogs produce better pork chops than bristles—and so you'd better take good care of that paint brush!

Says a brush manufacturer: "Only China grows the long, lean type of hog that produces good bristles. In China he is scantily fed, which causes him to grow a heavy coating of such bristles for protection. In this country we raise hogs mainly for eating. The bristles are of inferior quality."

Attractive Colonial Type Cottage





The colonial type cottage enhances almost any American landscape—you'll find plenty of them in Fort Myers, Fla. and near Hollywood, for instance. For the simple and inexpensive house, like the one offered you today, or the huge millionaire's dream house, Colonial lines are equally beautiful. Remember that dwellings of this sort take to climbing vines; your new homestead can quickly be made to look truly homey.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES
O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist

Q.—Should cape jasmines receive the same treatment as gardenias? Mrs. A. K. S., Georgetown, Ky.

A.: The cape jasmine is just another name for the gardenia. Incidentally, it is one of the many examples of the misleading common names that are often put on plants. This same thing is true of one of our native trees, the tulip tree, which is often called tulip poplar or yellow poplar but actually it is a magnolia.

Q.: Will you please tell me what window I should put my wax begonia and African violet in, both during the summer and for blooming in winter? I do not have any good luck with them and I think I put all of them in the wrong window. Mrs. P. McK., Madisonville.

A.: I do not believe the difficulty you are having with your house plants is due to the window but rather to the way in which you are watering them. During the winter you can grow African violets in any window and the begonia in an east, south, or west window. During the summer, these plants would appreciate being kept out of a too hot sun so that an east or north window would probably be the best.

Q.: Would you please give me some information on gladiolus, such as how to treat the bulbs for thrip, when to plant, and how to have continuous flowers for sale? Mrs. H. P., East Liverpool.

A.: I suggest that you ask your county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on gladiolus and dahlias. Incidentally, most folks do not realize that, since gladiolus are almost hardy, they can be planted as soon as the ground can be worked in the spring. By planting any one variety at intervals of ten days from early March until July 1, gladiolus may be had in bloom from early July until cold weather. Of course, there is considerable difference in the amount of time required for the different varieties to come into bloom, some being earlier than others.

Q. I am writing concerning the preparation known as vitamin B1 for use on various flower and garden plants. Are there any preparations on the market that are of any value? C.R.F., Delaware.

A.: Vitamin B1 is normally manufactured in sufficient quantities in the leaves of the plants to provide a sufficient supply. Besides that, there is normally a sufficient amount of this in soils in Ohio to supply plenty for plant growth. The only plants that have shown any appreciable results from the use of vitamin B1 in our experiments at the University are camellias, cactus, gardenias, and some of the succulent plants. Consequently, the various magazine articles and advertisements highly overrate the value of vitamin B1 in Ohio.

BRISTLE SAVER

Even amateur painters (house), discouraged from touch-up jobs by finding bristles always twisted and dried, may have use for a kit that holds nine brushes in a glass jar containing a fluid said to put bristles, old or new, in the right condition. A fiber boot protects the jar. Bristle protection on a big scale is afforded in a kit with a wringer attachment.

SIX PERMITS FOR BUILDING ISSUED

Projects Listed for Week Expected To Cost $670.

City Clerk Lew Shadaker reported that in the week ending May 8 he issued six building permits for construction jobs estimated to cost $670. Last week, six permits for projects amounting to $520 were issued.

C. W. Campbell was issued the largest permit for a dwelling to cost $350. The dwelling is to be built at East Mark and Patterson streets.

The other permits were issued to:

Mrs. Carl Pollock for a garage at 1120 West Center street, $30; Mrs. William Van Houten of 432 Lee street, remodel porch for $100; Corra Lash, garage at 741 West Center street, $25; William Griffith, remodel porch at 422 Thompson street, $15; John W. Moser, extend garage at 253 North State street, $150.

Housing Provided at Medium Cost

Such marked progress has been made in recent years by the Federal Housing Administration in its effort to encourage home construction in the lower price ranges that a large proportion of the private building undertaken since the start of the defense program has been well within the maximum price limitations established under the defense housing priorities system.

This is one of the reasons why the war housing being built today under the FHA program will offer a high degree of livability long after the present emergency is over.

The primary concern of the Federal Housing Administration, ever since its inception, has been with the family of moderate means. The well-built, low-cost home is now a commonplace, due in a large degree to the FHA insured mortgage plan, and the FHA's insistence on sound construction and good design and desirable neighborhoods.

TERMITE DAMAGE SERIOUS PROBLEM

Few people are able to detect termite infestation until much damage has been done, says Emery T. Smith of the Buckeye Terminix Co. During the Spring months termite swarmers, known as "Flying Ants" emerge from the colony to establish new nests.

This indicates that thousands of destructive workers have been left behind to continue their damaging effects. Smith offers detailed information and free inspection by Phoneing Mansfield, Dial 1538-1, representative office of Buckeye Terminex Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

Building Quiz

Q. What are firestops?

A. The space between studs when left open from top to bottom, acts as a flue, so that a fire in the lower part of a house might easily spread to the upper part. As a safeguard against such a spread of fire, a firestop is made by closing these spaces with some incombustible material.

Q. How can I stop the dripping of water pipes in the basement?

A competent plumber tells me there are no leaks and that apparently the dripping results from condensation.

Q. How far should a concrete footing under a chimney go down for a one-story house?

A. All footings should be of a size to support adequately the load to be carried. They should extend below the frost line prevailing in the neighborhood.

Q. I would like a frosted or obscure glass effect on one of my windows. How can this be done without replacing the present glass?

A. Clean the glass with alcohol. Then cut out a sheet of tissue paper of the desired color to fit the glass and apply a spar varnish thinned with a quarter as much turpentine. This will penetrate the paper and stick it to the glass, as well as make the paper water-resistant.

READY FOR USE

Fire extinguishers outdoors or in unheated buildings may be kept from freezing and ready for use with "overcoats"—steel boxes warmed by heating units and identified by glow lights. The rub is that such equipment is designed for civilized people, might be blacked out when most urgently needed, as during an air raid.

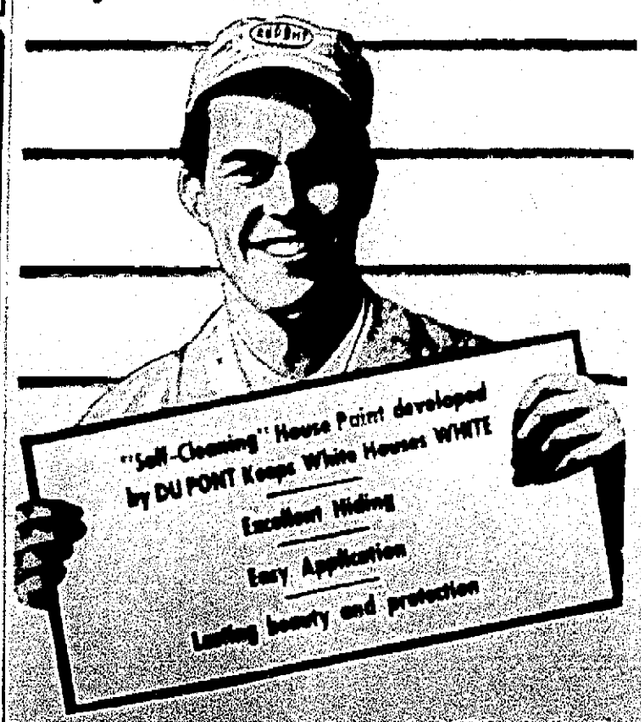
DU PONT HOUSE PAINT
keeps WHITE houses WHITE



"Self-Cleaning" House Paint developed by DU PONT Keeps White Houses WHITE
Excellent Hiding
Easy Application
Lasting beauty and protection

BRILLIANTLY WHITE at the start, Du Pont House Paint stays white because it's "self-cleaning." It forms a tough, durable film which protects the surface from rust, rot, or decay. Like all paints, it collects dirt on exposure to the elements. As time goes on, however, a fine white powder forms on the surface of this new paint. This powder is washed away by heavy rains, carrying the dirt with it and exposing a fresh white surface. This self-cleaning process starts after a few months of exposure under normal conditions of weather, but may be delayed under unusual dirt-collecting conditions such as found in sooty industrial areas. Because the "self-cleaning" process is gradual, the weather qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Available in light COLORS, too! The new Du Pont Tru-Tint formula offers you lovely light colors with the same "self-cleaning" properties you get in the white Du Pont House Paint. Du Pont House Paint costs no more than other good paints. And it saves you money because it needs fewer repaintings. Next time you paint, ask your painter to use Du Pont House Paint.

—And Especially Now

WHAT happens to mothers in wartime is something the statisticians haven't reduced to neat columns of figures—and of course they never will.

Their pride, their anxiety, their worry and their grief can't be described that way. It is in the expression of their eyes and the way they carry their heads that they tell their story.

The nation always is eager to find an excuse such as Mother's day to give them special attention—and especially now. The hope that lives beneath the war effort is a hope for all mothers, everywhere.

It is a hope that somehow men who believe it can be done will find a way to make a world in which mothers never again will experience the agony of knowing that their sons and daughters must go forth into danger, instead of security.

Salary Commissions

UNDERSECRETARY OF WAR PATTERSON'S successful plea for the privilege of giving commissions to civilians with no military qualifications merely maintains an existing practice. Apparently, however, the reason for its necessity is not well understood.

Aside from abuses arising under it—and a certain number must be expected—the commissioning of civilians can be justified without apology. As Mr. Patterson explains, commissions for combat services are given only to men with military experience. The commissions given to civilians, on the other hand, are based on civilian experience. They are salary commissions, in recognition of earning power.

A technical expert needed by the government is plainly entitled to pay commensurate with his private obligations—and the commission is used to make as good an adjustment as possible. There will be some abuses of the practice, but until someone can devise a better way to transfer a civilian into military service when he is needed, sweeping criticism isn't justified.

Today's What-About-This Story

IDLING through the Congressional Record, a fine way to keep track of what goes on in the master minds, a patriot learns that Sen. Brooks of Illinois has been thinking about measures for fighting German submarines off the Atlantic coast. The success the U-boats have been having, together with an acute shortage of cargo vessels, is supposed to be the greatest threat to American security at this moment.

Boiled down to its essence, Sen. Brooks' idea is to use thousands of those little planes that used to sputter around to establish an air "umbrella" over coastal shipping. They would be as adaptable to the purpose as the taxicabs that rushed French troops to the front in World war I. At present, they and their pilots are grounded. With a few hours of work on each plane, a little organization, some two-way radios and depth charges, the United States could develop a military asset of high value. Instead of trying to patrol coastal waters with ships that are too fast for observation and pilots that could be used to better advantage elsewhere, the government could fall back on something it already possesses from its civilian stock-in-trade to do as good or perhaps an even better job. It is going to be interesting to see what happens to a suggestion so obvious and inexpensive that almost anyone can grasp its possibilities.

For Ingenuity in Rebuttal

A HAND-DECORATED sugar rationing card has been won by the Democrat who thought up the idea that letting Republican governors appoint price control and rationing administrators might not be such a bad idea. The governors probably would appoint Republicans, robbing the Democrats of patronage, but in due course of time the Republicans would get a black eye, because rationing isn't going to be a popularity contest.

This marks a clear course for the Republican governors. Without hesitation, they must set Democrats instead of Republicans on the hot spots, thereby spoiling the political strategy that has been detected in the decision to let them exercise authority. Meanwhile, the Democratic governors will be appointing Republicans and 50 years from now when the books are balanced everything will come out even. Sometimes party politics just gets so darned silly that it isn't even funny any more. Maybe they should give the rationing jobs of Communists and let them take the blame.

News Behind the News

Here Are Some of Possible Next Moves for Japan: China Drive Expected.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 9—The Japs have now completed Burma and the Philippines and reached the ceiling of their aggressive wars.

The 400,000 troops they drew out of China to conquer Malaya, Singapore, Java and the Philippines are available for the next step. Their replacements have filled the gap of readjustment.

That there will be a next step is almost certain. While Japan has just about all she wants, her military position is rudimentary and she can hardly afford to lose the initiative.

Only disconcerting hints as to what is coming have been offered by Tokyo. She has been making faces in all directions, toward Australia, India, China, Russia, trying to keep us guessing as to where the next blow will fall.

A careful military analysis of the alternatives confronting her, however, will furnish an enlightening basis for calculation as to what we may expect.

Possible Move in China

First, it is clear Japan could keep right on going up the Burma road into China and launch a pincer movement at Kunming from the other side, based on Hongkong and Canton. Or she could drop the northern arm of the pincer straight down through the Yangtze valley towards Kunming.

Either way, she could throw most of her available 400,000 troops right back into China, not to capture Chungking, but to catch and crush Chinese resistance and drive China out of the war.

Simultaneously, she could strengthen her northern Manchukuo front against Russia, attack there simultaneously with Hitler's spring offensive.

Other Possibilities

An attack on Ceylon and Madras in India could be launched to clear the bay of Bengal. This would also be of some help to Hitler if his plans to get Laval to attack Syria are successful. It would divert British attention.

Or a limited attack on the Calcutta area of India might be chosen instead. Iron is available there, and while the Japs have amassed much tin, rubber and other raw materials so far, they have not obtained much iron.

A naval campaign could be launched down through the Coral sea, aimed at the Solomon Islands, New Hebrides, Santa Cruz, even New Zealand, to cut our lines of supply to Australia. Certainly the Japs have been making funny faces in that direction. Some news accounts from Australia speak confidently of a coming "battle of the islands," meaning these. Such a move naturally would precede any direct attempt to invade Australia proper.

Tokyo and Berlin

On the Japs' choice, much depends on how close they still are to Hitler. Jap cockiness, after its conquests, has had obvious repercussions in Berlin. The Japanese ambassador was not invited to the Hitler-Mussolini meeting in Germany. Nazi propaganda lately has mentioned Japan in a cold tone.

If they are still close, their next moves will come jointly—both against opposite ends of Russia at the same time, or a Jap attack on Ceylon and Madras timed with a French Nazi attack on Syria.

The Japs, however, cannot attack on all these suggested fronts at the same time. They can hit China and one other—either Russia, India or the Islands, or even Alaska, (remote), but their forces are probably insufficient to maintain any more extensive effort than that.

China Move Likely

The move they are best prepared to make is the concentration to knock China out of the war. Before Corregidor fell, they had shifted 100,000 troops, half of their Philippine forces, back to the Burma front. The other half now can be more easily transported to Hongkong-Canton, or to the Yangtze river front, than to any other prospective battle line.

The Chinese are not well fitted to resist. Lack of artillery and air power has prevented them from taking much advantage of the weakness in the Japanese lines on their front since Dec. 7. Now, with the Burma road cut, they are ill-prepared to face the fury of a final Japanese concentration.

Necessity of Reorganizing Our Lives for War Seen as Possible Blessing in Disguise.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, May 9—It is often said that we have to reduce our standard of living. Yet the real problem is, I suggest, clearer if we say we have to change our ways of living. Mr. Henderson has, for example, told us that "it is probable that in the next 12 to 15 months we shall get a civilian standard of living equivalent to 1932, which was the low of all lows during the depression." In a crude statistical sense this is no doubt true; it is reasonably certain the aggregate money value of goods produced for civilian use will be no greater than in 1932, when factories were shut down or operating at very low speed.

But to describe the prospect this way may hide the real situation and may even give a false impression. It would certainly be a very false impression if, on the one hand, we were led to think that millions upon millions of workers will be destitute as they were in 1932, or on the other hand that those who have money can go on in the ordinary way, though on a reduced scale.

The prospect in 1942 is radically different in kind from that in 1932. For there will be no question this time that the resources and the government powers exist to insure the necessaries of life to the whole mass of the people. Yet there is no question also that in 1942 almost every one will have to change his habits and rearrange his personal life far more radically than most people did in 1932.

Then we did without or did with less—temporarily. Now, we not only have to do with less and do without, but we have to do very differently—for how long no one can possibly guess. So we would be deceiving ourselves if we thought we could sit out this storm as we sat out the depression of 1932. For while the gross statistics may show that we shall have the same quantity of goods, the fact is that the goods we cannot have now compel us not merely to tighten our belts but, what is much more difficult and important, to reorganize our lives.

Great Changes

The alteration of our ways of living would not have to be so drastic or so sudden if we had to deal only with the fact that Mr. Nelson is converting factories and cutting of civilian supplies. We own an enormous quantity of durable and semi-durable goods—automobiles, houses, refrigerators and also clothes — which, even if they could not be replaced, would last us a good long time. The great change is forced upon us by a world crisis in transportation, of which the rubber shortage in the country and the oil shortage on the east coast are the dramatic but by no means the only aspects.

We realize now, though we did not realize it before Dec. 7, how interrelated are the means of transportation by sea and land and air, by pipeline, barge, railroad, trolley, bus, truck and passenger car, on horse, by bicycle and afoot. The American automobile is losing its efficiency because ships cannot go to fetch rubber from the Far East at all, or carry oil safely in the Caribbean and along the Atlantic coast. Not even the automobile, which seemed to us the most American of American products, is self-sufficient. Moreover, as the automobile can no longer carry its load, the load backs up upon the railroads and the busses and the trolleys. And, as they cannot carry the extra weight, the load backs up upon every family and every neighborhood.

It is then no longer a question of economizing but of doing differently, and indeed of thinking differently about how we carry on our lives. For in the face of the acute practical problems, which every household will have to solve, we shall have to attain a degree of self-reliance along with neighborly and communal cooperation which was rapidly disappearing from the American way of life.

The individual's own automobile has probably been the most revolutionary invention in the whole modern history of man. It made the individual feel highly independent of his neighborhood and even of his community, and in making him a self-sufficient nomad it has done much to dissolve the ancient ties between men and the place where they belong, between men and the other men among whom they were born. The automobile is a great and indispensable facility.

Now that we are compelled to depend so much less on the automobile we should not look upon the inconvenience as an unmitigated evil. The personal adjustments we have to make will be many of them in the nature of a blessing in disguise. For they will compel us to revive and restore many habits and many virtures which, if they disappeared altogether, would leave far greater evils than mere inconvenience.

Not being able to move about so easily for our pleasure and our profit, we shall have to learn again to rely upon ourselves, and our own resources, and our near neighbors and friends. It was this combination of self-reliance with the neighborliness which was the characteristic virtue of the earlier American way of life, and in the more settled parts of the country it still flourishes.

This is the combination which has struck all sensitive visitors to America—how individualist are the persons in America and yet how easily and eagerly they come together. In fact, the comic figure of the go-getter and the joiner is only a caricature of the obvious defects of very substantial qualities. He is a reflection of the self-reliant man who is also a good neighbor, of the man who contrives and manages for himself—whether to get about or to amuse himself—and yet shares and joins with his neighbors so that they all can get about and also amuse themselves. This very American American is due to reappear, and he will be applauded rather than laughed at in the days which are upon us.

Workers: Women vs. Men

Research Group Makes Study, Lists Its Findings.

By JAMES MARLOW AND WILLIAM PINKERTON

NEW YORK, May 9—(Wide World)—If you're the boss and one of the girls makes goo-goo eyes at you, don't make goo-goo eyes back at her. The other girl's won't like it.

But: Girls do better work for a man-boss than they do for a forelady.

Girls: Your boss would like to know why, when you go to the restroom, you always need another girl for company?

And girls: You may be able to control your emotions as well as does a man—maybe—but when you finally let go you raise an awful rumpus.

And girls: War factories are no place for an Easter parade, so when you go to work don't think it's a swell chance to show off your finery.

These were some of the general opinions, rules or observations found by the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., a research organization, in a survey among employers in wartime factories where hundreds of thousands of women will be finding jobs.

New Problems

The results of the survey were intended to help factory managers operate efficiently and with a minimum of friction in their plants where women workers, many of them going into jobs for the first time, are bringing new problems with them.

Here are some of the board's findings gathered from employers, stated in general terms:

Women are quicker than men to detect any evidence of favoritism and become jealous and resentful if another woman seems to be "making a play" for the boss.

Most executives believe that as a rule women do not look on their jobs as a permanent career because, consciously or unconsciously, they hope to get married and leave and for that reason are seldom interested in promotional possibilities.

Some employers believe—and some don't—that women are less stable emotionally than men, being more sensitive to criticism and more easily discouraged.

One boss in particular found fewer emotional upheavals in his women workers but when those few burst out they involved tears, hysteria and plenty of general disturbance.

Women show less initiative and aggressiveness than men, some employers found. One said women are "creatures of habit" and once given a job will "keep on doing it forever without ever getting a new idea."

Another employer bluntly polished off women workers with this description: "The average woman is a caretaker, not a promoter."

But employers generally noted that women rarely seem willing to go to the washroom or restroom alone. One boss said that even if fatigue were not a factor, he would favor ten-minute rest periods in the middle of each working period to permit women to go to the restrooms together.

There seems to be an "overwhelming preponderance of opinion, based on "experience," that women work best under male supervision. One employer said "when women supervisors are good, they are very, very good, but when they are bad they are awful."

Because so many trials have turned up such a large proportion of "bad supervisors," nearly all the companies questioned were planning to use men.

Both British and American experience indicate that women are likely to be absent from work more often than men. The primary reason is that they have a higher rate of illness, although the burden of domestic responsibility seems to be a contributory factor.

It appears, the board says after citing several reports, that the weekly hours worked by women should be about 5 fewer than those worked by men, although the nature of the work has to be considered in any such figuring.

Women factory workers wear special clothing mainly for these three reasons: as a safety measure and to protect health; to improve morale and eliminate class distinctions; and to protect the product being made from contamination.

Some employers believe that a special work uniform aids on raising the morale of women workers. One of them said:

"When girls put on their slacks, shirts and caps in the morning, their point of view seems to change. They feel that they are regarded as men who have a man's job to do. They don't want to worry about their clothes and they don't want to powder their nose. They really throw themselves into their job."

Mosby's Rangers

During Civil War They Proved Possibilities of Tactics Now Being Used by the Commandos.

By DAMON RUNYON

THE British Commandos whose daring exploits frequently are the news [illegible] and the terror of Hitler's soldiers of the Civil war, bands of horsemen who rode fast, struck quickly and then disappeared.

They often rode by night, their horses muffled [illegible], and they depended on the speed of movement and the element of surprise for the success that as the Commandos today. The latter name comes from the war term it was applied to the Boer irregulars, who, like the Commandos, made life miserable for British troops in South Africa.

Some of the raiding bands of the Confederacy were also called guerillas by the Yankees and in fact that may have been true, since the term was ever employed to describe what Webster defines as "one who engages in irregular warfare in connection with a civil war, especially as a member of a predatory band." The word stems from the Spanish "guerilla."

In short, a guerilla during the Civil war was an independent fighter, holding no allegiance to any definite military command, probably not always predatory, but one who fell into disrepute because of the blundering actions of some of the independents.

FROM Quantrill's band came the James boys and other run-and-out bandits of later years. The north had similarly desperate gangs and crews, but these raiders are not to be confused with the south's forerunners of the Commandos who were known as Partisan Rangers and were fine soldiers, though irregulars. They were commanded by some of the great military geniuses of this nation's history including Turner Ashby, John H. Morgan and John S. Mosby. They were brilliant and fearless leaders in "the cause."

They led their irregulars in daring raids on the rear and flanks of the federal armies, swooping down suddenly on outposts and supply trains and keeping the Union soldiers in a continual dither. Their capture of tons of provisions and munitions kept the Confederate army going. Ashby and Morgan were killed during the war but Mosby kept on fighting even after Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomatox.

Mosby was a lawyer at Bristol, Washington county, Louisiana, when the war broke out. He served a while under Joe Johnston in the Shenandoah and then Gen. J. E. B. Stuart appointed him an independent scout. He mustered around him a band of reckless men and proceeded to make history. He performed the most fabulous exploits. He captured Gen. Stoughton at Fairfax Courthouse far inside the Union lines.

MOSBY harassed the flank of the Union army moving south after Gettysburg, worried the rear of Grant's army as it advanced on Fredericksburg. He raided far into Maryland and captured Sheridan's entire supply train at Berryville. He was wounded in September at Fall's Church but the following month nailed two federal paymasters with $168,000 [illegible] tore up the Baltimore & Ohio tracks, destroyed a raft of rolling stock and nabbed Gen. Augur's Duffie.

After the war, Grant himself interceded in Mosby's behalf and got him paroled. He was one of the most formidable of the Confederate leaders and certainly one of the most elusive. He often got inside the Union lines and there were times when he and his command would be surrounded. On those occasions, Mosby would order his men to scatter, each trooper making his way back to the Confederate line as best he could. He never had his men organized into a tactical fighting unit and never had an established camp.

When he planned a foray, he would call his lieutenants take word to farmers who had been enlisted in the Rangers and were subject to call, to regular cavalrymen home on furlough and troopers looking for fresh horses. Then they would meet him at an appointed spot. They were volunteers and never knew in advance where they were going. They just knew they were going with Mosby. That was enough.

Summer School Work

(FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES)

By JACK STINNETT.

WASHINGTON — "Yoo - hoo. School's out" used to be the June cry of American youth, but it won't be this year.

Commissioner John W. Studebaker's office of education has issued this pronouncement. "The summer comes not as a time for vacation but as an opportunity for (the schools') pointing their services toward certain basic objectives headlighted by the needs of the armed forces and of war production."

As President Roosevelt once pointed out, educators just have to say it the hard way.

All that means is that any school that can keep open this summer and contribute its facilities and personnel in some way to the war effort is not skipping its opportunity to be of important service to the community and the nation.

Just so those opportunities won't be overlooked, the office of education's wartime committee has outlined them and they are worth repeating. For example, schools, which heretofore have gathered nothing but dust and broken windows through the summer heat, can touch off a ton of T.N.T. under the enemy this year (so the commission says) by offering their buildings and facilities for—

(1) Courses in mathematics, English, social studies and science.

(2) Aviation education—from model building on up.

(3) Training of women and girls for industrial trade and clerical occupations.

(4) Courses in nursing, nutrition, first aid.

(5) Intensive physical fitness courses for lads and lassies who will be up for military training or war work within the next two years.

(6) Office of civilian defense (OCD) courses for air raid wardens, auxiliary fire and police wardens and other OCD jobs as may be needed in those areas.

(7) Continuation and expansion of such vocational and agricultural courses as now are offered under the federal aid program.

The office of education already is busy drawing outlines for all courses suggested in the list of recommendations. But it is pointed out that each local school administration must adapt its own needs and adapt its summer school program to its own community requirements.

Time was when summer school was a dreary thing to be attended by the laggards who couldn't keep up with the rest of the class, or by some smart Johnny or Mary who wanted to get through high school or college at the prodigy age.

The latter may sneak in this summer—but if particular talents apply to the war effort, then there will be no dumb clucks in this year's summer school. The office of education recommends that counselors be appointed to see that only those who will benefit most and those who will benefit the country's all-out military program most by this special summer session get training.

Robert McKinley Dies Following Hemorrhage

An inter-cranial hemorrhage caused the death of two-day-old Robert Martin McKinley, today at 11 a. m. in City Hospital.

Shortly after his birth Thursday at the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKinley of 272 Lincoln avenue, the inhalator squad from central fire station worked over the baby more than 30 minutes. Early yesterday morning he was taken to City hospital for oxygen treatment. The physician said the hemorrhage had affected the respiratory center.

The mother is the former Helen Pence of Marion. The father is a native of Big Springs. A sister, Mary Louise, also survives.

Friends may call after 7:30 tonight at the Merle H. Hughes funeral home on Mt. Vernon avenue, where the funeral will be conducted Monday at 10 a. m. Burial will be made in Marion cemetery.

WALLACE SEES JAPS ATTACKING ALASKA

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 9 — Vice President Henry A. Wallace sees a Japanese attack on Alaska and a simultaneous German-led uprising in Latin America on the axis summer time-table.

Declaring that Hitler knows the United States is winning the battle on production, Wallace told the Free World association last night that the German leader, "like the prize fighter who realizes he is on the verge of being knocked out, is gathering all of his remaining forces for one last desperate blow."

The vice president predicted the blow would come in the crucial summer months, adding:

"We may be sure that Hitler and Japan will cooperate to do the unexpected—perhaps an attack by Japan against Alaska and our northwest coast at a time when German transport planes will be shuttling across Dakar to furnish leadership and stiffening to a German uprising in Latin America.

"When I say this I recognize that the peoples both of Latin-America and of the nations supporting the agencies through which the fifth columnists work are overwhelmingly on the side of the democracies."

Wallace said this country must look for "the worst kind of fifth column work in Latin America, much of it operating through the agency of governments with which the United States at present is at peace." He did not name any specific nations.

The Free World association was organized last June to mobilize public opinion against the axis powers and to work for a democratic world after the war.

Statement From Gen. MacArthur Removes Doubts

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Word from General MacArthur's headquarters is that the allied naval and air forces (mainly American) have won a phase of the battle of the Coral sea, and that are in the mood to attack the Japanese fleet, which appears to have retired.

We have a right to take encouragement from this statement, which may be summarized thus:

"The great naval and air battle off the northeast coast of Australia has temporarily ceased. * * * The enemy has been repulsed. * * * His claims of damage inflicted on our naval forces are fantastic. Our losses compared with his own are relatively light. * * * Our attacks will continue."

It would be foolish to try to read between the lines. We shall just have to contain ourselves until we get the details.

We must know how badly we have hurt the enemy—whether his withdrawal is tactical or due to great weakness—what losses we ourselves have suffered—the sizes of the two forces engaged.

Until we received General MacArthur's word that the Japs were lying about the damage inflicted on us, and that our losses are relatively light, we had no way of judging how the battle went. The Allies claimed 11 Japanese ships sunk and six badly damaged, while the enemy said they had sunk an American battleship, two United States aircraft carriers, and damaged two other allied ships. On the face of it that didn't look too good for us, because many of the Nipponese ships were small and the loss of striking power in a battleship might offset much of the damage to the enemy. However, now that we are assured the Japs are fictionizing, we fell better.

Yesterday one noted a good deal of easiness among the public because of these figures and some rather strong statements by Australian officials. Prime Minister Curtain declared that "invasion is a menace capable hourly of becoming an actuality." Former Prime Minister Wm. Hughes rose in the house of representatives to cry: "To the ramparts, then, Australians and brace yourselves for the great struggle that looks darkly ahead."

But Mr. Curtin's statement seemed to be primarily for home consumption to put people on their toes. As for Billy Hughes, whom I knew well back in the first World war days, he has a penchant for strident language.

However, the American public has to take these things at face value and some commentators even extracted gloom from these statements.

It is likely that the Japanese have been aiming at cutting the American lines of communication with Australia and thus neutralizing the value of this great and growing base which looms as a grave menace to Nippon and her ill-gotten conquests. If we are in process of inflicting a heavy defeat on the Japs in the battle of the Coral sea then the threat to our communications will be relieved, the Australians will have far less cause to fear invasion, and the striking power of the American base in Australia will increase, bringing nearer that happy day when we can launch a full-blown offensive.

There is another important point which we musn't overlook. The Japanese have had numerical naval superiority in the Pacific, and any serious lessening of our naval striking power might enable the Japs to embark on fresh projects.

The fly in the ointment for Japan, however, is that despite any immediate success they will be beaten in the long run because of our superior resources and facilities for production. Japan cannot build ships at the rate at which they have been sunk since the war started. Sooner or later they must crack up.

BRITISH CHEERED BY NAVAL BATTLE NEWS

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 9—The British press greeted with enthusiasm today the news of allied successes in the great Coral sea naval battle, but official quarters cautiously withheld comment pending a full report on the action.

While the most optimistic commentators asserted that the sea fight had definitely forestalled a possible invasion of Australia, more reserved sources said the full significance of the engagement could not be assessed until allied losses were known.

Naval observers, however, noting the part which allied planes obviously had played, said the United States navy undoubtedly had learned well the lessons taught by the Java sea battle last March, the sinking of the British battleship Prince of Wales and battle-cruiser Repulse off Malaya and the destruction of the British cruisers Dorsetshire and Cornwall in the bay of Bengal.

Two Face Charges of Reckless Driving

Marion state highway patrolmen made two arrests on charges of reckless operation yesterday.

Walter Meyer, 19, of East Lansing, Mich., was arrested about 5:30 p. m. on Route 23 south of Marion. He posted $15 bond for appearance in municipal court today.

Patrolmen arrested Loren Baker, 24, of 694 Mt. Vernon avenue about 10:55 p. m. near the junction of Routes 23 and 4 north of Marion. He also posted $15 bond pending arraignment Monday.

NEW CHAIRMAN OF OHIO WAR BOND STAFF

Philip J. Tromsture, retired Cincinnati, O., business executive, this week accepted U. S. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's invitation to be chairman of Ohio's War Bond staff. Morgenthau's invitation was made at the request of Roy D. Moore, State Administrator of the staff, who for the past several months has served in both capacities. Both Tromsture and Moore are serving on a voluntary "$1-a-year" basis.

Presidential Bee, Looking Over G.O.P. Field, Buzzes Around Sen. Burton

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 9—The presidential bee is buzzing about the head of Ohio's Harold H. Burton.

All-absorbed in the problem of winning the war, the junior Buckeye senator declines definitely even to discuss politics but disreticence hasn't quieted talk that his name will be among those considered when the time comes for the Republicans to select their standard-bearer in 1944.

The senator's attitude is that he was elected to serve in the senate until 1947 and that this is not the time to ponder future political fortunes. He smiled away numbers of friends who suggested that he might be Ohio's favorite son candidate for the 1944 nomination.

Two Other Possibilities

This suggestion raised an important point. The state has at least two other potential favorite sons—Senator Taft and Gov. Bricker. Taft was a leading candidate at the last Republican convention until the delegates turned overwhelmingly to Wendell Willkie. Friends say that Taft will be a factor in 1944.

Political leaders emphasize that Bricker would be in a position to muster strong support if he won a third term for governor. The question then conceivably would simmer down to consideration of the vote-getting ability of Bricker, Taft and Burton from a national viewpoint.

Friends of Burton say that he does not contemplate any action toward his own nomination but they suggest that he isn't of a character to back down if there is sentiment favoring his selection.

Meanwhile, friends insist that the notion of a Burton-for-President movement is no bubble. One Ohioan at the capitol said that the idea had been called to the attention of top party leaders, among them National Chairman Joe Martin.

Speculation over Burton as a presidential prospect developed seriously as a result of his remarks at the party's state convention in Maine last April.

Burton Gives Advice

He admonished the Republicans, first, to devote all their energies to winning the war; then to prepare to lead the nation to better administration.

Burton suggested the test of the Republican party war the degree to which it earned and deserved public confidence.

"I mean," he said, "confidence in it not only as a minority party but also as a majority party capable of leading the nation in this crisis and to progress beyond.

"The first issue is the war. If the Republican party is worthy to be a party at all, it must dedicate itself without reservation to winning the war."

This means, he added, "supporting the President and helping him to win the war. It means action by congress in its coordinate capacity, not hesitating to criticize where criticism is needed, but doing it always with constructive purpose and effort."

LOSS

heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, two destroyers, four gunboats, two transports or cargo vessels.

Damaged—one aircraft carrier, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, one seaplane tender, two transports or cargo vessels.

This brings the Japanese aircraft carrier losses to at least two, cruisers to 19 and destroyers to 27 since the start of the war—a rate of sinking too rapid for the shipyards of Nippon to replace. It is especially serious for the Japanese in the cruiser class. There the losses are about 35 per cent of the cruisers listed in most manuals as built or building by Japan at the start of the war. The destroyer losses would be about 20 per cent.

Japs Still Strong

Yet despite these setbacks the Japanese still have a formidable battle fleet. They have lost only one old battleship of the ten built and 8 building they are believed to have had before Pearl Harbor. And they have the tremendous advantage over the allies of operating near bases along the length of their war lane from Japan to New Guinea.

In any foray toward America, however, they would have to fight on even terms. Vice President Wallace's prediction in New York last night that the Japanese might attack Alaska or the northwest Pacific coast sharpened speculation that the apparent Japanese determination to push southward may be a diversion.

Calls on Mothers To Remember Sons On This May 10

PHILADELPHIA — The Greying Little spinster who founded Mother's day suggests this year's observance be reversed because of the war.

"It will be up to the mothers themselves to do the remembering on Sunday," said 64-year-old Anna M. Jarvis.

"Perhaps one of our boys will fall on the battlefield. Then his mother would like to know there was a letter from home in his pocket."

Miss Jarvis' love for her own mother led her to persuade congress in 1914 to designate the second Sunday in May as Mother's day. Since then, she has written thousands of letters to promote the observance in every state and in more than 50 foreign countries.

Nowadays, the Grafton, W. Va., native rarely leaves the Lindy brick house that has been her home for 30 years. Her health has been impaired, she said by the series of court battles against "unscrupulous interests who use millions out of my idea."

Miss Jarvis, who hopes for the early return of peace so she again can exchange cabled greetings with Mother's day organizations in Germany and Japan, has her own convictions about the war.

"Do you know why Hitler acts the way he does?" she asked.

"It's because his mother died when he was 16."

dicated that Allied ships and planes were chasing the Japanese, seeking to bring them back into action or to scatter and destroy them.

The full text of the communique said:

"The great naval and air battle off the northeast coast of Australia has temporarily ceased.

"This action represents the continued effort of the Japanese to extend their aggressive conquests toward the south and southeast.

"First efforts were aimed at expanding his air bases but our airforce has consistently and effectively attacked his fields during the past six weeks, dislocating his plans through the destructions of installations and aircraft.

"Our reconnaissance has revealed the gradual upbuilding of naval transport elements for the coordinated attack of combined forces which was initiated several days ago. Our naval forces then attacked in intereceptions.

"They were handled with marked skill, fought with admirable courage and tenacity and the enemy has been repulsed. Our attacks will continue."

List of Jap Losses

Up to the moment of the halt announced by the communique, Allied headquarters had listed these sunken Japanese ships:

One aircraft carrier, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, two destroyers, four gunboats, one supply vessel and one transport.

These had been announced as damaged:

One aircraft carrier (presumably totally disabled), one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, one 9,000-ton seaplane tender, one cargo vessel and one transport.

Although unofficial reports had said the damaged aircraft carrier burst into flames after torpedo hits and ultimately sank, a government spokesman said there was no confirmation of this.

Against these Japanese losses, Tokyo broadcasts put the Allied cost at one U. S. battleship and two U. S. aircraft carriers sunk, and a British battleship and British (Australian) cruiser damaged.

The only comment on these claims was the prompt assertion of the British admiralty in London that no British battleship had been sunk or damaged in the action.

Sidney Press Joyous

The Australian press wrote joyously of the battle, the Sidney Daily Telegraph declaring that "all the news smacks strongly of a big victory."

Prime Minister John Curtin, who spoke portentously yesterday of a "sterner ordeal and greater and graver responsibilities" if the tide of battle should run with the enemy, today addressed his gratitude to the fighting men in a relieved though still conservative mood.

"We can be proud of what has been done. More than that, we can be grateful for it," he declared.

Hull Happy But Withholds Comment

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 9—Secretary of State Hull said today it was difficult to restrain one's self from expressions equal to the magnitude of the victory reported over Japanese naval forces in the Coral Sea.

However, he told his press conference, he felt he should wait until the full facts have been received on the engagement.

"The great naval and air battle off the northeast coast of Australia had temporarily ceased," a United Nations communique said.

Says Allies Spotted Japs

The communique said Allied scouting planes spotted Japanese warships and troop transports massing in the islands north of Australia several days ago.

"Our naval forces then attacked in intereceptions," the communique went on.

"They were handled with marked skill, foughth with admirable courage and tenacity, and the enemy has been repulsed.

"Our attacks will continue."

Thus Gen. MacArthur officially countered the Tokyo claim that Japanese warships "caught and attacked" the Allies, and also gave a clear implication that the U. S. battle squadrons, supported by Australian units, were pursuing the battered enemy.

In Washington, the navy announced that details of losses and damage to the predominantly American naval forces engaged in the historic battle were not yet fully known.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters acknowledged only that a "small-sized Japanese aircraft carrier converted from a tanker" had been sunk. It said 89 Allied planes had been shot down, against a loss of 31 Japanese aircraft.

Citing these reported successes, Admiral Sanchichi Takahasi told newsmen in Tokyo:

VICTORY

but all the aircraft returned safely.

Some other bombers returning from Friday's chase came down through the overcast and found two Japanese seaplanes, which they dealt with.

From a standpoint of land-based air power, the effectiveness of recent sustained raids on Lae and Rabaul — kingpin Japanese invasion bases — has been reflected sharply in the total absence of Japanese bombers over Port Moresby since Monday. Enemy activity there has been confined to strafing by Zero fighters.

When eight Zero fighters swooped down on Port Moresby — on the southeastern coast of New Guinea across the Torres straits from Australia, the Allies met them with a superior number of planes and without loss to themselves, destroyed at least one of the enemy.

The fun begins when trailed by Nazi agents, she seeks refuge in the New York theatre where Hope, a ham vaudevillian, is appearing with his partner, a penguin. In the end Miss Carroll manages to conclude her secret mission successfully, Hope gets decorated by the British government and the penguin gets an extra fish for supper. The Wednesday picture will be "The Remarkable Andrew," featuring Brian Donlevy, William Holden and Ellen Drew. Secret Orders

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

CHAPTER 27
Changing Jails

AFTER that, Stephanie stood long hours at the grilled window watching the shadows of late afternoon creep slowly, steadily into the alley. She was helpless to do anything now.

At best, it would be late evening before anyone at home became really alarmed. Knowing she'd been called to Headquarters, they'd probably think she had just stayed on through the night. She had on several occasions. There was no hope for help from that direction.

A little old Chinese beggar woman poked into the alley poking up tinfoil. Idly Stephanie watched her. Back and forth through the rows of garbage cans. Poor old thing. Stephanie watched her trudge lonely past the window, the hem of her filthy dress just touching the sidewalk, her face hidden by a battered old felt hat.

The beggar disappeared and Stephanie went back to her own thoughts. Too nervous to relax, she paced the narrow room slowly. As she moved, her big guard watched her relentlessly. The steady scrutiny of those brutal, black eyes drove her back to the window.

The old beggar woman was there again. Poking at the refuse strewn in the gutter. Stephanie shuddered. But at that, the old woman was better off than she was! Watching the old crone go, Stephanie smiled wryly. You couldn't possibly realize how precious liberty was until someone took it away from you.

It wasn't five minutes later that the old woman returned. Intrigued, Stephanie watched her going slowly along the walk, scuffing through the litter of papers with the point of her cane, stooping now and then to put something into the basket she carried. Unconsciously, Stephanie stepped closer to the window to see what it was she was collecting. As she did, the woman looked up squarely into her face.

For an instant Stephanie thought her imagination was playing tricks. The old woman turned away so quickly she could not be sure. Still she was sure that was Lau.

Seven O'clock

At that moment, Henri's watchdog apparently sensed Stephanie's excitement.

"Something interesting going on?" he growled over her shoulder.

Instantly Stephanie drew back from the window, shrugged carelessly as she walked to the cot, sat down. "Nothing more than an old beggar hunting for tinfoil."

"Nothing, huh?" He peered out the window and Stephanie's heart stood still. "You seemed mighty interested in nothing."

It was nearly five o'clock then. For the two hours following, Stephanie tried hard not to let her hopes rise too high. It seemed unwise to depend on so flimsy a thing as a fleeting recognition. Because how could that have been Lau—dressed like that, poking around a miserable alley. And yet if Lau had missed her, suspected what might have happened, it was just possible she had disguised herself that way in the hope that—

But Stephanie couldn't even be sure that Lau had actually seen her. It would be difficult, if not actually impossible, to recognize anyone down in this dark hole. And through a window as dirty as that one, too.

But seven o'clock arrived inevitably and with it the sound of Henri's step on the stairs outside.

When he came in, she scarcely recognized him. No longer the impeccable manservant, he looked more like a lumberman. Heavy plaid shirt, boots, a cap pulled down over his eyes. And even his speech had lost all of the roman's French flavor that had charmed Vicky so.

"Hello," he greeted her carelessly. Then he spoke in rapid German to the four men who'd scrambled to their feet as he came in. As he spoke, they nodded eagerly, slipped pistols into coat pockets, left the basement indoor one by one at short intervals.

When they had gone, Henri turned other. "Well now you made up your mind?"

"Certainly."

"And you still prefer to be stubborn about this?" he scowled and the threat implied was apparent.

"I'm not telephoning any false messages to my father, if that is what you mean."

He stared at her, eyes narrowing dangerously. "Very well. You'll come with me."

Fishing Boat

He swung open the door to the street. But just as Stephanie would have stepped past him, his grasp on her arm tightened. "You'll find it wiser—and more comfortable—to keep your mouth shut." Then, thrusting her ahead of him, they went up the steps to the street.

A car waited at the curb, its motor running, its three occupants silent as Henri thrust her almost bodily into the back seat, climbed in after her.

Not a word was spoken as the car pulled away from the curbing, moved rapidly through all of Stephanie recognized immediately was the dingy end of Chinatown. Down steep, narrow one-way streets, through deserted districts that, during the daylight hours, teemed with wholesale produce trucks, but deserted now, echoed hollowly as the big car rumbled along.

Crushed firmly between Henri and the huge, silent man on her left, Stephanie was helpless to move. And in the front seat, the man beside the driver sat half-turned in her direction, his hand under the lapel of his coat, threateningly.

Not once during the much-too-short ride to the waterfront did she see an officer. Hardly a pedestrian even. It was as if the streets had been cleared purposely. Any stray hope she might have cherished in spite of Henri's warning, had to give up now.

At the waterfront, she was transferred so quickly from the tonneau of the big car to the deck of a small boat that she had only time to recognize that it was the same fishing boat she had surprised Henri visiting. Was that only a few weeks ago!

Fishing boat it might seem to be, she realized moments later, as thrust into the cabin she sat huddled in the corner of a leather-covered window seat and tried to collect her senses. But only from the outside. Here in this trim cabin was grim evidence that it was not fish these men were after.

Along one wall, racks of guns of all size. At the end, the glistening dials of a huge radio. A sending set, probably, and the operator wearing the headphones, she saw instantly, was one of the gardeners from the Miller house.

GALION FLYING CADET FEATURED IN MAGAZINE

Has Role in Six Page Article in Life.

Special to The Star

GALION, May 9—Jim McIllyar of Galion is featured in a pictorial account entitled "Flying Cadet" in this week's issue of Life magazine. He is the son of William McIllyar of Mansfield, and the late Ethel Diamond McIllyar, of Galion.

The six-page account was obtained at Randolph Field where Jim received his basic training before being transferred to Lubbock Field for bomber training and his commission. He will be commissioned a second lieutenant on May 20 and will enter the regular army air corps.

After graduating from Galion High school in 1935 he took a business course at Miami university and later worked for the Frigidaire corporation at Dayton. He enlisted and went to Hick's Field, Texas, last October for preliminary air corps training.

When he was in Galion he resided at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Ralph Boyd, where his sister Marcia, still resides.

Film Depicts RAF Scenes

Picture at Ohio Shows Preparations for Raid on Nazi Territory.

"Target for Tonight," virtually produced by the RAF itself, the first picture in history to record the planning and execution of an actual air raid on German territory, has been booked for Tuesday through Thursday at the Ohio, following the current Edward G. Robinson comedy, "Larceny, Inc."

Because of the official nature of its sponsorship, the cameraman on "Target for Tonight," had free access to the heretofore secret inner sanctum of the RAF strategists. Part of the "settings" in addition to rooms in which the RAF carries out its ground work every day, include photographic sections where aerial maps are developed and scanned; the Bomber Command operations room where the "order of battle" is planned; a crew room, where the airmen bide their time in the tense interim between receiving their orders and the take-off and the Wing Commander's office where the departure, route and return of each plane is charted.

In "Larceny, Inc.," Robinson, an ex-convict, and his sidekick, Broderick Crawford, are in cahoots with Anthony Quinn who is still in jail, to rob a bank. As a cover-up Robinson goes into the leather goods business only because his store is next to the bank.

Construction of a tunnel into the bank is constantly interrupted by legitimate business in the store. Robinson's profits boom and he soon finds it's more profitable to go straight. The bank escapes its fate. But when Quinn is released he insists that the bank project go through. The brawl that ensues in the luggage store takes place on Christmas eve.

"Gambling Lady," starring Barbara Stanwick, with Joel McCrea and Pat O'Brien in support, will be brought back for showing on the bill with "Target for Tonight." Miss Stanwyck plays a gambling lady who weds a man of wealth and then sacrifices her love to free her husband from a murder charge.

"To the Shores of Tripoli," the technicolor salute to the marines, will open next Friday.

Randolph Scott, John Payne and Maureen O'Hara are starred.

Marion Hawks To Meet Galion in Ohio State Opene

First Game Set for 3 P. M. Sunday at Lincoln Park.

Marion's new Ohio State semi-pro baseball team is ready for its opening game of the season here tomorrow at 3 p. m. on the Lincoln park diamond with the Galion Jaycees furnishing the opposition.

Not since abandonment of the Marion Diggers as an Ohio State Class D league team in 1938 has league ball flourished in Marion. Earlier in the baseball season Marion was suggested as a site for a team, but the proposal fell through and later the league was disbanded for one year because of the failure to post entry fees amounting to $600 per team.

Three Games Set

The new league which will open on three separate fronts tomorrow was conceived by Charles LeCrone, president of the Tiffin club in the defunct Ohio State circuit. He suggested at a meeting of northern Ohio baseball backers that owners of clubs under the old setup organize new teams using home town talent as the nucleus of each team.

Tiffin will play at Fremont and Fostoria will go to Findlay in other opening games.

Sponsoring the Hawks is Roosevelt lodge 1281, A. F. of L. Ray Roseberry, a leading figure in local baseball activity for many years, has been named manager.

The city park commission recently approved use of the Lincoln park grounds as home park for the Hawks. In return for the use of the diamonds and stadium which is capable of seating 1,723 fans, the Hawks will be required to give one-quarter of the net proceeds to the commission to insure upkeep of the diamonds. All baseball teams using the park will follow same plan.

Members of the team and friends were at Lincoln park this morning readying the grounds and stadium for tomorrow's opener. A new screen in front of the stadium has been installed. A city-owned scraper and road roller was used to put the diamond in shape yesterday.

Bacon To Hurl

King Bacon is Manager Roseberry's starting mound choice. Bacon has been pitching sandlot ball teams here for six years and at one time was a member of the junior Legion team.

Ted Anderson, who shares the receiving assignment with John Paulus, probably has a richer baseball background than any of his teammates. In the early 1930's he was regarded as the best backstop ever developed here. In 1936 he was signed by the Pittsburgh Pirates, but was forced to turn down the offer shortly thereafter when an accident resulted in the loss of an eye. He is one of Manager Roseberry's leading hitters and is expected to be a big success in the semi-pro circuit.

Proceeds from games to be played this year at the park will go towards ultimate construction of a roof over the spectator concrete stadium constructed in 1937 under supervision of the WPA.

The Galion line-up tomorrow will include James Lyons, Galion High school coach, at short stop. While a student at the University of Illinois he captained the Illini nine and was one of the Big Ten's leading hitters.

Probable line-up follows:

Marion Hawks	Galion Jaycees
Loper, 1	Lyons, s
Stout, lf	McClure, 1
Walters, 2	Scaffer, 2
Joe Paulus, 3	Gobin, 3

YANKEES TAKE LEAD IN AMERICAN LOOP; CARDS DEFEAT REDS

Marchildon Throws 5-Hitter Against Bosox; Tribe in Second Place.

By The Associated Press

The world champion New York Yankees are in sole possession of first place in the American league today, thanks to the Philadelphia Athletics and Phil Marchildon.

All American league teams were idle yesterday except the Athletics and the Boston Red Sox, who changed into Philadelphia with the idea of wiping out the half-game margin between themselves and the Yanks by slapping down the lowly A's.

But Marchildon, ace of Connie Mack's pitching staff, had an idea of his own. He toyed a five-hitter and gave the Athletics their first victory of the year over the Boston club, 2-1.

Tribe Takes Second

The defeat kept the Sox from grabbing a share of first place and knocked them out of a second place tie with Cleveland and into the number three spot, a half game behind the Indians and a full game behind the Yanks.

Three games entertained the fans in the National league and all ran true to form with the Brooklyn Dodgers, Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals—the big three in the standings—coming out on top.

In Brooklyn, the first twilight game in the history of the majors established an Ebbets Field record of 42,622 paid admissions as the Dodgers tripped the New York Giants, 7-6.

The game, first of 16 to be staged in the two leagues this season for the benefit of the armed forces, produced $59,859.25 for the navy relief society.

Camilli Hits Seventh

Dolph Camilli's seventh home run of the year in the seventh inning was the margin of victory for the Brooks.

The Pittsburgh Pirates remained a game and a half behind the Dodgers by whipping the Chicago Cubs, 6-4. Rip Sewell went all the way for his fourth victory against one defeat.

If the Cincinnati Reds want their first long home stand to include more victories than defeats their work for today and tomorrow against the St. Louis Cardinals is cut out.

Yesterday the Card trounced Cincinnati for the third straight time, the 5-2 defeat was the seventh for the Reds in a dozen games of the current stand.

Today Johnny Vander Meer, only Redleg hurler to finish every game he's started, was the probable pitcher against Harry Gumbert.

Elmer Riddle held the Cardinals to one scratch single for four innings yesterday then opened the fifth with his only walk. Ken O'Dea and Creepy Crespi singled, filling the bases, and although the next two cards were retired, Jimmy Brown singled two runs across.

Enos Slaughter and rookie Ray Sanders homered off successive pitches in the sixth—meaning for Elmer his fourth defeat in five starts—as many as he had all last season as the league's leading pitcher.

Prospect Retains Co. Track Title; Harding Lose

Three Meet Records Fall As Pleasant Is Nosed Out By 8¼ Points

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

Only change in Prospect's unblemished eight-year track record resulting from yesterday's county meet on the Prospect oval was the addition of one more trophy and another year of supremacy to the long line of Prospect cinder successes.

Upsetting almost everybody's dope bucket, the Paul Keller-coached squad nosed out a heavily-favored Pleasant township team 67 7-6 to 59½. Six more of other Marion county teams participating in the all-day races were: Green Camp 37 2/3, Morral 33, Caledonia 14, Waldo 3 and Meeker 1.

Waldo's junior high team easily outpointed all other entries to win the junior high title with 45 points. In second place with 19½ points was Pleasant. Other scores were Morral 30 and Prospect 1 and Meeker each 2½.

If a margin of victory was to be drawn from the final results, most observers would point to Prospect's air-tight control of both the low and high hurdles as principal contribution to the slim victory.

Loren Gast and Robert Dodrill, two of Keller's best performers were laid up with minor ailments. On most pre-meet dope sheets these two youths were conceded to be good for 15 points.

Pleasant's lanky Al Hogue was the individual star of the meet, capturing firsts in all three events in which he was entered. He equaled the meet record in the 120-yard dash with a 12.6 jog. He missed bettering the 220 yard dash record by one-fifth of a second and was a half-second off the 100-yard dash record.

New records were set in the pole vault, mile run and the 220-yard low hurdles.

Senior Jim Cusick of Pleasant vaulted 11 feet, 1½ inches to better by a half inch a mark set in 1935 by Earl of Claridon. Two weeks ago Jim teamed with his brothers, John and Dean, to place fifth in the Ohio Wesleyan university relays and a week before that the trio placed first in the first annual Prospect Invitational relays.

Nickel of Caledonia shaved a half second off the 1938 record of 1:51.6 set by Vanderhoff of Pleasant in the mile run. He finished almost 100 yards in front of Cecil Oebker of Prospect.

Gast of Prospect chipped one-tenth of a second off the old 220-yard low hurdle mark of 28.2 set in 1910 by J. F. Lauer of Prospect.

New marks were established in the discus, high jump and 880-yard relay in the junior division.

Fascist Editor Lists Axis' 1942 Objectives

By The Associated Press

BERN, Switzerland, May 9 — Writing on the premise that the war would not end this year, Giovanni Ansaldo, authoritative Fascist editor who frequently expresses the government's opinion said today that Russia, the Mediterranean and India are the three objectives of the tripartite powers in 1942.

After that, he said in a Fascist review in Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo, the Axis in "besieged Europe" would concentrate on productive economic organization to win what he called the "last battle."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

ON MOTHER'S DAY

Editor of The Star: I am writing this, mainly, that many people who observe Mother's day will more fully learn by whom and by what efforts the day so set aside was made not only a national day but is also recognized as an international commemoration.

The mother of Miss Ann Jarvis died in Philadelphia, Pa. On Sunday, May 6, 1906, Miss Jarvis called in a friend to share with her the anniversary of the passing of her mother. By untiring efforts she interested others in the idea to set a day for remembrance of everybody's mother. The city of Philadelphia adopted a day in 1908. The state of Texas followed so in 1912 and Pennsylvania in 1913. In this year also the U. S. senate and the house of congress passed a resolution naming the second Sunday in May in honor of "The best mother in the world, your mother." The idea gained international recognition and was adopted in England and has since been gaining headway all over the world. Churches of all denominations observe it, public schools the preceding Friday, and business on Saturday. The solgan is, "For the best mother who ever lived." The badge a white carnation.

No hero or heroine could be shown greater homage. If all the statues, medals and pieces of trophy were cast into one mold, if all the marble busts and statues of clay were joined into one mass, these would not be enough to give a visual representation worthy of the name mother. It is only from the minds of mankind that the fullest homage can be given.

The cares of earthly existence have always been carried by the mothers of the world. Their sorrowing has most always been in secret. This kind of days are only repetition of how mother can outwardly, calmly face a certainty and still carry on with her daily duties. Little do we know what in secret she fears most. In her prayers she asks the spiritual armor be drawn around those who are far beyond her care and in danger. A mother does not consent that her boy and another mother's boy be thrust together in cruel encounter. She is not concerned that world trade be gained by force of arms but she is concerned that all mankind abide in harmony, not alone by the laws that men set up but by the rule that right is right.

We can pay no greater tribute to the mothers of the past, help the mothers of the present and make life easier for the mothers of the future than to send out a comforting thought to all the mothers of the world and best wishes that in a very short time the world will return to the days when truly, "The hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world."

MARBLES AND JACKS TOURNEY PLANS MADE

Competition To Begin Monday; Finals Next Saturday.

Monday, fifth and sixth grade girls and boys from North Main and Oak street schools will go into action in either jacks or marble tournaments. The jacks tournament is for girls and the marble tournament is for boys. Both tournaments are sponsored annually by the Y. M. C. A.

At stake in both tournaments are ribbons and prizes. Ribbons will be awarded to winners of both grades in school championships as well as to victors of each grade in city championships. Ribbons and prizes will be presented to the all-city winners.

The contests, which will take place at each of the 11 elementary schools entering contestants, were postponed a week because of sugar rationing activities at the schools. Jack Coughlin, boys' work secretary at the Y, announced the tournaments will proceed next week as originally planned except for being a week late.

After individual school contests have determined a champion and runner-up for both fifth and sixth grades at all schools, a city championship match will be held to determine the champion and runner-up for all fifth and sixth grades as well as city champion for all grades and runner-up for all grades, Mr. Coughlin announced.

Schedule for other schools taking part in the tournaments is as follows:

Tuesday, Greenwood, Forest Lawn and George Washington; Wednesday, Oliney and Pearl and Thursday, Silver, Glenwood, Oak and St. Mary.

Finals will be held Saturday.

UNITED STATES STEEL ACCEPTS CIO CONTRACT

Affects Workers at New Jersey Navy Yard

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 9 — Big steel — the United States Steel Corp. — has agreed to a maintenance-of-membership contract between its subsidiary, the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., Kearny, N. J., and the CIO Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, as directed by the national war labor board.

It was understood, however, that acceptance by the subsidiary of the maintenance of membership clause would not commit the corporation or its other subsidiaries to similar action.

The decision, announced late yesterday, apparently ended a months-long dispute during which the navy took over and operated the federal yards for 19 weeks after a strike in which a major union demand was maintenance-of-membership.

"This action has been taken solely because of the war emergency and this country's great need of ships in order successfully to prosecute the war," Federal President I. H. Kaufman said in a statement.

The New York Times said which "government officials" looked upon the case as a major test of the NWLB.

JAPS OCCUPY MYITKYINA

By The Associated Press

JAPS SHIFT PRISONERS

THOUSANDS ON HAND FOR PREAKNESS RACE

Richest Purse in Years at Stake in Pimlico Event.

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Md., May 9 — Prospects of the most slambang battle in the Preakness stakes in years lured racing fans by the thousands to Pimlico today to see Shut Out, the Kentucky Derby winner, try to make it two in a row against the nation's best three year olds.

Shut Out and nine others, including his handsome stablemate, Devil Diver, were named for the 52nd running of the Maryland Jockey club's historic race, with the winner due to pick up $56,000 or $58,000—the richest purse since Victorian won an even $60,000 for Harry Payne Whitney in 1926.

Officials expected a crowd of 40,000 to 45,000—as many people as ever have jammed the compact little plant outside Baltimore to witness the mile and three sixteenth event at 4:55 p. m.

THE COAL FACTS
Will You Be Living In Half of a House Next Winter?
There may be hundreds of thousands of homes literally "cut in half" next winter because their owners neglected to fill their basements with coal. Shut-off rooms, cramped quarters, cold floors, drafts, etc, may be what you'll have to face unless you phone your coal dealer now and have your fuel delivered.
Our government has issued statements regularly urging everyone to HOARD COAL NOW because our rail and other transportation facilities are going to be jammed to capacity with shipments of war supplies and materials needed in production plants and by our men in service. These things must come first!
Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen owe it to themselves and to their country to use foresight and provide themselves NOW with sufficient fuel to keep their homes warm next winter. Next fall may be too late—no one can promise delivery in the future—no one can tell now how much rationing is to be applied to the fuel industry.
WE THE UNDERSIGNED COAL DEALERS URGE YOU TO COMPLY WITH YOUR GOVERNMENT'S REQUEST TO STORE YOUR COAL NOW:

STOCKS GAIN ON WAR NEWS

Price of a Number of Issues Boosted by Naval Victory Reports.

By The United Press

NEW YORK, May 9 — Stocks were buoyed by a better brand of war news in today's market and leading issues added fractions to a point or more to the recent recovery in dealings that, while still relatively slow, were the liveliest for any Saturday in two months.

Spurring considerable short covering and a little new speculative and investment demand at the start was the cheering word from General MacArthur's headquarters that the Japanese invasion armada had been repulsed in the big battle of the Coral Sea. While details of the conflict were lacking, Wall Street felt that the indicated heavy losses of the enemy might mean a turning point in the long run of bearish international developments.

In addition to optimistic bulletins from the southwest Pacific, bullish contingents continued set the opinion the market had a better than even chance of extending the forward push because of technical factors involved in the lengthy retreat.

Transfers approximated 200,000 shares.

Blue chips were among the widest movers. Chrysler was among an assortment of favorites edging into new high ground for the year.

Better performers included Westinghouse, American Can, Du Pont, American Tobacco "B," Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, J. C. Penney, Owens-Illinois, International Harvester and Anaconda.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem, well ahead in the first hour, backed away at the last.

Chicago

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 9—Salable cattle 100; calves none; compared Friday last week, after fluctuating sharply, fed steers and yearlings finished 25 higher, but closing undertone very weak, with medium to good grades well under week's high time; sharp supply readjustment, approximately 30 per cent at all large markets; main stimulating factor after Monday; proportion weighty fed steers very small locally; buyers bid sharply early to conform with their conception of March ceiling prices in dressed beef but had to compete actively later on starvation runs; choice to prime 1428 lb. steers topped at 16.50, next highest price 15.75, long yearlings 15.50; relatively little above 14.50, bulk 11.50@14.25; most other killing classes advanced, hence, general undertone bearish at close in anticipation of increased receipts, regaining early declines, heifers steady; choice heifers topped at 14.65, bulk 12.00@14.00; cows regained early downturns, finishing steady, with cutters at 8.75 down and most beef cows 9.00@10.25; strictly good kinds reaching 10.75 during week; bulls week but active, late top on heavy sausage at 10.50; vealers steady at 14.00@15.50; limited supply stock cattle mainly steady at 11.25@13.75, but bulk went to only a few buy operators.

Salable sheep 500; total 2,000, late Friday; fat lambs slow, clippers strong to 10 higher, woolskins weak to 15 lower; few decks choice 92-95 lb. woolskins 15.00, bulk 14.50@14.75; choice 90 lb. clippers with strictly No. 1 skins 15.65, others 15.00@15.35.

Compared Friday last week: all slaughter classes gained price ground, fed lambs 75 to 1.00, fat sheep around 25; fed woolskins lost 1025 on the close, with clippers gaining about the same amount; the week's top on choice woolskins 15.20, with strictly choice clippers with full No. 1 skins going late at 15.65; bulk of the woolskins late 14.50@14.75, a few under, with most clippers 13.25@15.65; fat ewes 1% the wool sold sparingly at 5.00@5.50; with the bulk being shorn at 6.25 down.

Salable hogs 100; total 5,100; strictly a nominal market on good and choice hogs because of meager fresh arrivals; undertone steady on all classes; quotable top $14.10; shippers took none; holdover 1,900; compared week ago; good and choice barrows and gilts 250 lb. down mostly steady, heavier weights steady to 10 lower; sows around 10 off.

Former Galion School Head Called in Dispute

By The Associated Press

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., May 9—The Miami township board of education, hoping to reopen Bryan High school Monday, announced today that it would negotiate over the week-end with eight teachers who resigned in protest against the reinstatement of an expelled student.

The teachers failed to report for classes yesterday and the board conferred last night with O. E. Hill, assistant state director of education, (former superintendent of Galion public schools) and Robert Rohe, executive director of the department.

Wool Trading Slow on Boston Market

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, May 9 — The Commercial Bulletin said today:

"With the exception of a very few houses, trading in wool has been slow this week as most of the growers are holding their wools at prices at or above the ceilings.

"Manufacturers, comfortably supplied with wool, are inclined to let the market simmer. Most mills and topmakers are bidding lower prices. Rumors of a lease-lend order for some 250 million yards of goods to involve the lower wools, even of the carpet types, seems fantastic but evidently has som foundation in fact. Foreign markets are unchanged."

The paper published these Ohio quotations:

RAF BLASTS GERMAN BALTIC PORT WORKS

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 9—Big British bombers pressed home attacks from 400 to 800 foot levels last night to leave in flames the German aircraft works at Warnemuende, Baltic port of Rostock, in heavy night operations which cost 19 planes, the air ministry reported today.

The low level attacks were made in the face of "intense defense" by the Germans of a target which the British declared to be of highest importance in their campaign to knock out the German air force in the west.

They followed by a few hours Sir Archibald Sinclair's declaration that the first task of the RAF was to pave the way for invasion by crushing the Nazi air force at its bases and at its sources of machines—such large aircraft works as that at Warnemuende.

There also is a seaplane base at Warnemuende.

The RAF losses were listed as the heaviest of night operations in five months, although it was believed a larger number of bombers attacked Rostock and Luebeck recently.

Nazi night raiders, meanwhile, were active over East Anglia, scattering bombs, which a communique said did some damage and caused a small number of casualties.

12 British Planes Shot Down Near Diego Suarez

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 9 — The Paris radio reported today that two centers of resistance are being maintained in Madagascar hills south of British-occupied Diego Suarez and that 12 British planes have been shot down thus far in the interior fighting.

The radio said that news from the island was "scarce" but that the resistance was being kept up by some French forces which retreated from Diego Suarez upon its fall.

ENGINEER SHOT

By The Associated Press

SANDUSKY, O., May 9—F. J. Becker, 53, of Port Clinton, shot while driving a New York Central freight train, was reported in serious condition today. A piece of a .22 caliber bullet was removed from his head. Cleveland Cronninger, of Toledo, fireman, controlled the train until Becker regained consciousness and brought it to a halt. Origin of the shot was not determined.

ESTIMATES COAL NEEDS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 9—Gov. Bricker has informed Secretary Ickes that Ohio's public agencies —state, city and county, exclusive of Cleveland—would require an estimated 4,283,379 tons of bituminous coal this year. The governor's office said Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland failed to reply to several inquiries.

WAR VICTORY NEWS AIDS GRAIN PRICES

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 9 — Buying stimulated by reports of an American sea victory in the Pacific helped to steady grain prices early today.

Wheat opened ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, July $1.25, and later held near this range despite further profit taking sales, which caused yesterday's reaction. Corn opened ¼ off to ⅛ up, July 89½.

Check on Driver Who Fled After Accident

Marion state highway patrolmen were checking up today on a driver who crashed into a telephone pole on Route 4 south of Marion about 11 o'clock last night and then fled from the scene of the accident.

Whether there was more than one occupant in the car was not learned immediately. However, people living near the scene reported two boys had been taken into town in a neighbor's car.

Patrolmen said the driver of the Boyd-Uncapher ambulance reported he was called but that the car was deserted when he arrived. A check on the car's license indicated it is owned by Erik Wilson of 152 Blaine avenue, patrolmen said. They reported the telephone pole was broken near the base and that about three feet of the pole trunk was stuck inside the wrecked car.

WORK ON 11 NAVAL SHIPS UNDER WAY

By The Associated Press

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., May 9 —Seven new aircraft carriers of a modern design "like none in the world" and four cruisers are being built for the navy's combat force in this yard which last November launched the 35,000 ton battleship Indiana.

All of the new cruisers and carriers were authorized before Pearl Harbor and work on them is being speeded at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. by a laboring force that has been doubled in the last two years.

In addition, four more carriers of the same type are under construction at the Bethlehem Ship Building Co. at Quincy, Mass., and official reports from congressional hearing show that two more carriers have been authorized—but not announced—for the American battle fleet.

The carriers being built here —their tonnage and design a secret—are the Essex, Bon Homme Richard, Intrepid, Kearsarge, Franklin, Hancock and Randolph.

The four carriers at the Massachusetts yard are the Cabot, Bunker Hill, Oriskany and Ticonderoga.

Genius

"There is nothing a mother can do before birth to increase her child's brain power," says Dr. Donald A Laird. However, the methods of raising and educating the child can help or injure its latent mental acuity. Dr Laird goes on to answer the following questions:

Are college professors brainy? Not especially Tests have shown that the average college professor has only slightly more brain power than the average student About one-fourth of the students are brainier than the average teacher The professor knows more about his own special subject but does not necessarily have any more brain power

Are there many school children who are as brainy as college teachers? Yes There are about 250,000 United States school children today who are as brainy as the average college or university teacher.

Are children brainy because their parents believe? Seldom The cute sayings of children impress parents more than outsiders IQ tests show that the children seldom possess as much a degree of brain power as the parents thought

Do school teachers usually recognize brainy children? No. Grade school teachers spot dumb youngsters more easily than brainy ones

Are lightning calculators brainy Seldom A disproportionate number of lightning calculators have so few brains, other than their calculating ability, that they are to all practical purposes feebleminded.

Is great artistic or musical ability a sign of braininess? No An average dose of brains seems to be enough for a celebrated artist or musician Accomplishment in these fields depends more on special gifts and their cultivation than it does on general braininess

Can a family have one brainy and one dumb child? Not usually. Children in the same family are usually closely alike in brain power, even though they may be very unlike in interests and tastes

Are homely people more likely to be brainy? Just the opposite according to statistics

Are brainy children undersized? It seems so The smallest child in the school room is usually the brainiest

Are girls more likely to be brainy? No Girls and boys have about an equal chance

Are brainy people more likely to go crazy? No.

Are brainy people likely to be conceited? No Brainy folk usually realize that they have better heads than others but they do not rub it in

Are brainy people happy? Seldom

Does the world reward brainy people? Seldom

Are brainy people skilled with their hands? Seldom

Are brainy people popular? Rarely

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H E J —Where could I purchase carbon dioxide snow? How would it be used as a treatment for a birthmark? Would it be necessary for a doctor to give the treatment?

Answer. Carbon dioxide snow is manufactured on the spot in the doctor's office and evaporates in about five minutes, so it would be impractical to try to purchase it or have anybody but a doctor use it. Its effect on birthmarks is to freeze and kill the cells.

M C R —Would it be possible for a boy five years of age to get asthma from playing with a dog?

Answer Yes, hypersensitiveness to animal dander is one of the most frequent causes of asthma

Inquirer —What are the symptoms of a diaphragmatic hernia? Can it be cured and is an operation necessary?

Answer: A hernia is any hole or solution in continuity in a muscle through which the intestines protrude It is possible for the intestines to rupture through various weak spots in the diaphragm and get into the chest. Pitfalls of Love

Madge Gets Gangsters' Secret New York Telephone Number and Starts on Return Trip to Her Father.

THE CAPTAIN of the state troopers handed me a written report and turned to me, and as I took it I saw salute to the man who had given it to me. Beside each figure and letter

The telephone number was for a Manhattan exchange, and my knowledge of its location told me that the address was less than half a mile from the Lansfield home. The operator had been apparently anonymous

Tell Mrs Kingsland when she comes in after the groceries that Pete can't get home tonight He has a blowout and can't get the car fixed 'till tomorrow."

I put the paper away in my pocket with the memorandum containing the unlisted number of the Lansfield from which had come the call to Professor Diswell's home in the man's voice which the telephone operator had described as a "la-de-dah, woman-ish voice." That description had told me the identity of the person responsible for the fear

"Thank you very much," I told the captain, then any that he was mysteriously holding out a ten-dollar bill to me

Takes Gangster's Money

"They're not pikers, those I do," he said in a low voice. "This is what the fellow offered our man to send the message. Under orders from me he pretended to agree, took the message and the money. But, as I told you before, we can't keep the money. It's your headache, and I'm handing it over to you right now."

"I can see your viewpoint" I said, reluctantly taking the bill and putting it also into my purse

"But it's not my headache long I can't turn it over to my father and let him worry about it."

"A very fine decision," he said, smiling Then we shook hands again, and he turned to the police cars headed in an opposite direction to ours, while I went with Gus to my father's armored car

Joe was in the driver's seat, and I noted with approval that the engine was already running.

"Follow the gangsters' car which Bill is driving," I told Gus, "but when we stop to refuel at Branchman's—I've already told Bill to stop there—we'll take the lead and let them follow."

"Okay," Gus replied with his invariable formula As I took my seat facing Professor Diswell and "Charles," who masquerade ending the identity of my brother-cousin Jack Baker I had just discovered, I noted Gus passing on my instructions to Joe

The eyes of the old professor were closed when I entered the car, but some opened as I seated myself, and he asked fretfully:

"My housekeeper is the man there in charge?"

"Yes, indeed, very much in charge, I told him reassuringly. "And he seems to be a most competent man I'm sure you can rest easy about your home, no matter how long you choose to remain away from it."

"I am not going to be away from it long," he said "It's not likely that there will be any more of that gang looking for the cryptogram."

"I agree with him," I said, "especially as the man impersonating you saw that you and your friend had been taken away

"Besides," I went on, "as far as their associates know they have vanished into thin air. They bribed a state trooper to send a telephone message for them. The captain took the message and the money and turned both over to me for delivery to my father. There is also a state trooper in their car who is a stenographer, and he is taking down every word, no matter how cryptic, which they utter I am sure you will not be troubled again, but I am also sure my father will wish to see both of you."

"Not me," the man whom Professor Diswell had called Charles said quickly I gave him a steady appraising glance.

"Especially you, 'Shaven Rue'," I said in muted tones
